

Churchill Given Confidence Vote In Lower House

Only Three against Him; Lloyd George Asks More U. S. Aid

LONDON, May 7 (AP)—Warned in the anxious tones of David Lloyd George that America's war help is yet infinitely too little to beat Germany, the British House of Commons today gave Prime Minister Winston Churchill a new mandate to carry on with a confidence vote of 447 to 3.

For nearly two hours and a half the white-haired World War premier and the prime minister of this war engaged in a sober oratorical duel before an intent chamber. It was the end of a two day debate, a losing of Britain's newest reserves and a summation of her determination and hopes and it left Churchill to all appearances unshaken before Parliament and country.

Gets Great Applause

He walked from the crowded house in the midst of a rousing and rare demonstration by the members.

Churchill's speech in the main was a pledge that Britain will fight to the death, without thought of "retirement" on the besieged Greek island of Crete and in the beleaguered Libyan port of Tobruk, main present barrier to an Axis advance through Egypt toward Suez; announcement that nearly 500,000 British and Imperial soldiers now are in the middle-east to block the Axis, and the disclosure that America promised enough new ships to help Britain through 1942 in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Churchill admitted, in answer to Lloyd George, that Britain needed much more naval help from America but he added: "expect we shall get a good deal more help in many ways."

Expects Much from U. S.

"When a mighty democracy of 130,000,000 gets on the move," he said, "one can only wait for full development of those vast psychological, manifestations and their translation into physical means."

He concluded: "... I feel sure we have no need to fear the tempest. Let it roar, let it rage! We shall come through."

It was toward the Battle of the Atlantic that Lloyd George directed his warning.

"I thank God," he said, "for Secretary of War Stimson's speech Tuesday night suggesting that United States naval forces be used to protect shipments to Britain."

"America can do more! If she is going to enable us to catch up and then overtake Germany she has got to do infinitely more than any indication I have heard of up to the present moment."

Roosevelt's New Attitude

"It is clear from the changed attitude of President Roosevelt and especially from the remarkable speech of Mr. Stimson x x x that they realize how grave the position is."

But, he went on, his experience has taught him that American war organization is "full of disappointments."

"You must remember," he said, "the U. S. has never had Europe's experience of preparing for wars with millions. They have very efficient arsenals but their mechanical triumphs have been triumphs of peace, inventing, improving and multiplying the weapons of peace."

"In the last war America put their fleet in the Atlantic, every boat, while Japan was guaranteeing the Pacific. What is Japan guaranteeing now? She is guaranteeing that she will take advantage of the first opportunity to arrest domination of the Pacific from America!"

Demands Real War Cabinet

The old Welshman demanded "a real war cabinet," an end to governmental blunders, an intensified effort for food production and better manned and equipped factories.

Obviously restless during Lloyd George's hour-long speech, Churchill began to speak in a breezy manner, but his tones turned solemn.

He rebuked Lloyd George for his speech—one which, he said, "is not the sort of a speech one would have expected from a great war leader of former days who was accustomed to brush aside despondency and push onward to a distant goal."

He reviewed the Balkan defeat, recalling that Adolf Hitler had said it was a crime for Britain to send help to Greece against the overwhelming strength of "no fewer than forty divisions."

"This," he said, "is a kind of crime of which he is a good judge..."

He and all the cabinet, Churchill went on, would do the same thing again, even with the knowledge they possess today.

Refers to Libya Campaign

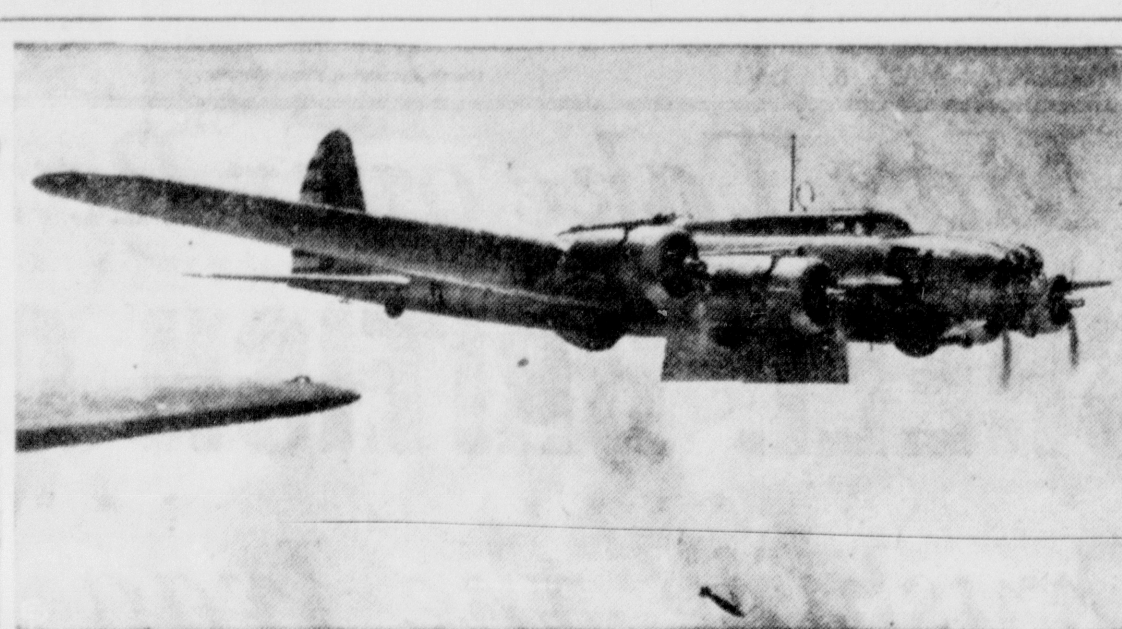

Churchill went into the Axis advance across Libya, and the rapid retreat of the British to Tobruk after the single British armored brigade on the advanced frontier of Cirenaica had been "defeated, dispersed and largely destroyed."

He acknowledged the German armored force in Libya was not much larger than the British; that "technical mistakes and mischances occurred," that the British armored force was disorganized without much fighting.

But now, he continued, "we are lying back on our fertile delta which, incidentally, is the worst ground in the world for armored vehicles. We have the command of the sea and the Germans are confronted with problems far more difficult than any they have so far solved."

Churchill acknowledged that the

A large increase in heavy bomber production was made an urgent objective by President Roosevelt as he instructed Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson to get the job done quickly. loss of the Nile Valley, the Suez Canal and the mid-Mediterranean island base of Malta would be among the heaviest blows Britain could sustain, but, he said, "we are determined to fight for them with all the resources of the British empire and we have every reason to believe we shall be successful."

Seen Danger in Iraq

Churchill charged the Iraq coup of the Rashid Ali Al Gailani had the object of getting everything ready for the Germans as soon as they could reach Iraq according to program, and suggested it was timed too early.

However, he acknowledged, "it might be that the Germans will arrive in Iraq before we have crushed the revolt."

At one point Churchill sharply rebuked the former war secretary, Leslie Hore-Belisha, for criticizing the government for a shortage of tanks, and for a few moments the House was in an uproar. He flatly reminded Hore-Belisha that he himself was in office in the pre-war years and "told us at the end of November, 1939, that we were comfortably winning the war."

On the final vote the only "noes" were from the lone Communist member of the House, William Gallacher, and the extreme left wingers Denis Pritt and Dr. Arthur Salter.

seventh of the day, was shot down before dark off the northeast coast of England.

With better weather over the channel area, informed Britons said the Nazis apparently were intensifying daylight patrols in an effort to thwart the British coastal bombers which have claimed a heavy toll of German shipping recently.

The fighting started late Tuesday, when the British brought down four Nazi fighter planes, and continued throughout the night and today in a stern give-and-take of bombs, air cannon and machine-guns.

British Bomb Hamburg

While German bombers concentrated on assaults on the Glasgow and Liverpool areas and other cities in northeast and southwest England, the British smashed at off-raided Hamburg at Kiel and Le Havre and at German shipping.

These rival raids clashed briefly over the North Sea on their way home, the British said, expressing belief that two of the Germans were damaged.

The Germans did considerable damage on the Clyde-side and inflicted a number of casualties, the British said, but elsewhere the toll was not so heavy. RAF night fighters said they knocked down eight Nazi bombers while anti-aircraft got another. Bombing along the Mersey set fires for the sixth successive night, but the red-eyed firemen confined the flames mostly to business property. Belfast had a fairly light fire raid.

Set Fires at Hamburg

On their own offensive, the British said they set large fires at Hamburg, pounded the wharves elsewhere, and destroyed a 5,000-ton German ship off the Frisian islands, losing in all five planes, but saving three pilots.

Two German patrol boats were declared wrecked yesterday. Dawn, the usual signal for both sides to race for home, witnessed merely a change in the character of the combat today.

The Germans circled over the southeast coast and the Thames Estuary and were quickly and heavily engaged by the British patrols, who reported downing six of them. Two British fighters were shot down.

At the same time RAF bombers and fighters in formation dived over the Strait of Dover at an altitude of barely 1,000 feet, bound back to the hostile coast of France for new blows.

in return was not indicated, but neutral sources in Vichy said it was unlikely the Germans would be making France a free gift of 100,000,000 francs a day, even though the German occupation costs have been figured at less than half the 400,000,000-franc bill.

Reports reaching Vichy from German circles in Paris said the agreement merely carried out policies of Pierre Laval which had been agreed on before he was ousted as French vice-premier last December 13.

Nye Sees Plot To Blitzkrieg U. S. Into World War

Scores Winchells, Thompsons, Stimsons, Willkies and Others

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Senator Nye (R-ND) declared tonight that "the Winchells, the Thompsons, the Stimsons, the Willkies and the others" were "blitzkrieging the American people into this war" and urged an MBS radio audience to "make known to official Washington" that the persons he mentioned did not reflect "popular faith and popular belief."

Taking to the radio forty-five minutes after Wendell Willkie appeared in New York for "convoying, patrolling, airplane accompaniment or what not" to deliver supplies to Britain, Nye asserted that "interventionist strategy" was to "give the president a chance to demonstrate that he was being pressured into convoying" and exorted:

"Americans, use the same machinery that your interventionist foes are using in this hour. It is the telling hour. It is the critical hour. It is the determining hour."

"Don't let the record of public expression that comes to rest in Washington these next few days be any excuse for a conclusion that the American people are convoying, shooting, and going to war."

"There will be those who will insist that the president has promised to keep us out of war, therefore he will not let these interventionists drag us in," the senator continued.

But let me remind you that however much assurance may have been given to the people by the president, Mrs. Roosevelt so very recently gave notice that the president had never given any such assurance or made any such promise."

Nye attacked Willkie on the score that he had repudiated the statements he had made during his 1940 Republican presidential campaign.

Foes of Convoy

ing a press conference discussion of a speech last night by Secretary of War Stimson. The latter, without mentioning convoys or any other specific method, had called for use of the navy to see that the supplies arrive safely abroad.

"Is the navy ready to do the job Stimson suggested?" Knox was asked.

"Navy Always Ready"

"The navy is always ready—ready more than ever," he replied. At the same time, the House approved an administration bill designed to make more vessels available for the trade with England. It was the measure empowering President Roosevelt to seize foreign ships immobilized here and put them to any use he should see fit.

It passed 266 to 120, after the House had beaten 220 to 160, a move to forbid the transfer of seized Axis vessels to the British mercantile marine.

Admiral Land's letter was read with wide interest in Capitol Hill. Between Jan. 1 and April 30, the Maritime Commission head said, records believed to be complete show that 158 vessels were sunk in all parts of the world, of which "only twelve of 66,782 gross tons" cleared from ports of the United States. Cargo reports of ten of these ships showed, he continued, that they were carrying assorted cargoes including copper, canned soup, prunes, steel plates, bars and billet, zinc, wood pulp, chemicals, ammunition, rifles, gun barrels, airplane engines and airplane parts.

Of the twelve, eight were included in a list of 205 ships which left ports of the United States for United Kingdom ports between Jan. 1 and March 30.

Nearly All Ships Safe

"This indicates," Land said, "that only a very small proportion of these vessels failed to reach their destination."

In presenting the letter, Vandenberg said he did not consider it conclusive, but that it was "far more authentic than the loose language that is being fed the American people." He added:

"On a question which so fundamentally affects the peace and security of the American people, I suggest we ought to have all the facts laid before Congress so we may reach informed and not propaganda conclusions in this critical moment."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said he was "not surprised" at Land's figures and that a rumor that forty per cent of American shipments to England were being sunk was "silly."

"The report hits at what has been the most popular appeal for convoys and war," he said.

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass) of the Senate Naval committee reiterated his opposition to convoys and said the Land report showed "the inaccuracy of the information that has been given to the public—it shows that information on losses has been colored to make them appear more serious than they are."

Senator Nye (R-ND) said the report should "end this blitzkrieg for convoys."

Japanese Uneasy

are signs the Japanese are realizing what growing German influence here may mean.

Japanese are mindful of the fact that there is little possibility of a large-scale exchange of material aid between Nippon and her European allies. The single dependable channel has been the long trans-Siberian railway, but Russia has shut this temporarily to movement of foreign war supplies. It threatens Japan's supply of machine tools from Germany.

Just how cordial were Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka's discussions in Berlin with Adolf Hitler and other Reich leaders is not publicly known here. But Colonel Yatsushiro Nagai, who accompanied Matsuoka as his military aide described Hitler as clenching a fist and pounding on the table, especially when discussing the necessity for making Britain yield.

Plans Independent Policy

Matsuoka's statement at Kyoto last Sunday in which he disclaimed any intention of visiting the United States has not, in the view of qualified observers, altered the basic fact that Japan intends to pursue an independent policy despite her Axis ties.

It is pointed out that Matsuoka waited several days before declaring himself on the proposed Washington visit, apparently to give ample opening for a gesture from across the Pacific. When this was not forthcoming it was believed he decided the time had come to check such suggestions, coming from newspapers here and in the United States, at least for the time being.

Shipping, financial and commercial interests are most vocal in expressing concern over relations with the United States. Discussion of possible closing of the Panama Canal would shut off Japan's trade with the east coast of South America and also seriously interfere with the still prosperous export of her raw silk to the United States.

Shipping men also were worried over the future of their prosperous trade between the eastern American coasts and the Philippine islands in which Japanese ships recently have largely replaced American vessels diverted to other uses.

Lack of Aid from

Moscow Al Rashid airplane destroyed several Iraq planes and ripped up the airport's aprons, a British communiqué said, against "practically no opposition."

In the North African fighting around Tobruk, Libya, the British claimed a successful attack by the British defenders on Axis posts, but added that operations there and at Salum, Egypt to the east again were hampered by severe sandstorms.

The RAF again heavily attacked Axis airbases at Benina, Derna, Gazala, Bardia and Berka as well as the harbor of Bengasi, it was reported.

Henderson Would Like Jap Metal Back

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Leon Henderson, price control administrator, discussing scrap metal shipments to Japan with House Ways and Means committee members today, expressed the wish that "we had back all that we sent"—with a qualification:

"I hope we don't get it back in a converted form, such as cannon balls."

Roosevelt's Ship Seizure Bill Is Passed by House

Goes To Senate Where Close Vote Appears To Be Likely

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Voting 266 to 120, the House passed President Roosevelt's ship seizure bill today and sent it on to an uncertain future in the Senate.

The measure, requested by the administration, would empower the president to seize foreign vessels aside in American ports and put them to any use he sees fit. Thus he would be enabled to use Italian, German and Danish vessels recently taken into protective custody, and others not yet requisitioned, in the help to England program.

Voting in favor of the bill were 212 Democrats, fifty-one Republicans and three Progressives; opposed were nineteen Democrats, 100 Republicans and one American Laborite.

Amendment Defeated

The bill was passed after the chamber had defeated 220 to 160, a motion by Rep. Cullin (R-NY) to send it back to committee with instructions that a provision be added forbidding the president to turn Axis-owned vessels over to Great Britain.

This proposal, presenting the biggest dispute connected with the measure, had previously been rejected, but without a record vote. Those behind it contended that to seize the ships of one belligerent and transfer them to its enemy would be an act of war on the part of the United States.

Senate May Compromise

It was this aspect of the controversy that held promise of trouble for the measure in the Senate. Already a group within the Senate Commerce committee, which is handling the bill, had adopted the same attitude and show itself so sizable that Senate leaders were talking of a compromise on this point.

The Italian and German vessels taken several weeks ago were seized under a law giving the government such power if sabotage were suspected. Additional legislation was needed, however, before the government could put them to work.

The bill provides that just compensation must be paid for ships requisitioned, but the House attached an amendment to the bill saying that if any of the ships are owned by a government which is in debt to this country, the compensation shall take the form of a credit on the debt.

16 Nazi Seamen

Placed in Jail

Taken from Standard Oil Tankers in Baltimore; May Be Interned

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—Sixteen German seamen of the Standard Oil tankers Heinrich von Rieder and Penelope were under arrest today, charged with overstaying their leave beyond the normal sixty-day period allowed foreign seamen in this country.

The men, now lodged in city jail, were among eighty making up the crews of the tankers who were removed from their vessels three days after the European war began in September, 1939.

A. R. Archibald, chief of the immigration service here, said forty went back to Germany via Italy on neutral ships two months later and the others remained until December, 1939, when the oil company sent them to New York.

The men now in custody, Archibald said, "are those who flouted jobs to Baltimore to get what jobs they could and to stay with friends here. They have been watched closely since returning to Baltimore."

Archibald refused to discuss the seizures, declaring that all information was "confidential."

Questioned whether the men were to be sent to an internment camp in the west, he replied "we are now primarily concerned with rounding them up and if there's anything about an internment camp it's up to Washington to make the announcement."

Juvenile Court Plan Is Up To Voters

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 7 (AP)—Governor O'Connor said today he had signed a measure passed by the last legislative session to submit to voters a constitutional amendment creating a juvenile court in Baltimore and authorizing the general assembly to establish similar courts in other cities or counties.

The measure, the governor said, constituted "a very definite step" toward "control and ultimate reduction of juvenile delinquency in our state."

He pointed out that if the amendment was ratified in the Nov. 1942 election it would make the juvenile court in Baltimore city a court of record, extending its powers and jurisdiction, and he declared, "rendering it much more effective in the handling of and the solution of juvenile delinquency problems."

The governor said that last week he signed into law another measure creating a five-man commission on juvenile delinquency which would make a further study of the problem in Maryland and other states, drawing up a report for the 1943 legislature.

Officials Offer Another Plan To Increase Taxes

Would Bear Down on Corporations and "Sock" Many Articles

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Two high-ranking administration officials urged Congress today to beat down heaviest with defense taxes on excess profits of corporations and on consumer durable goods which compete with munitions production.

The suggestions were made to the House Ways and Means committee by Leon Henderson, federal price control administrator, and Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Both approved the treasury plan to raise $3,500,000,000 but objected to some of the methods the treasury proposed, notably excise levies on non-durable goods and services.

Would Lower Tax Base

Contrary to the treasury program, Eccles also proposed lowering the individual income tax base for married persons to $1,500 from the present $2,000 and decreasing the credit for dependents to $300 from the present $400. The treasury recommended leaving the present figures alone but suggested a new set of surtaxes, starting at eleven per cent on the first dollar of taxable income.

Eccles said that the treasury plan would "impose too abrupt an increase on the middle brackets" of income and proposed surtax rates starting at four per cent. All surtaxes are in addition to the four per cent normal.

Henderson advocated taxes that would "sock" automobiles, radios, refrigerators and other durable goods which compete for materials and labor with defense production.

With one hand in a pants pocket and another waving a stick, he said the government should not "go gadding around" with levies on goods and services for mass consumption and on so-called luxury items which are non-competitive with the making of munitions.

The proposed treasury imposts on durable goods, Henderson said in effect, were not high enough, and he asserted that there should be no increases in the mass consumption-luxury classifications.

"Sock It To Them"

"I'd like to see you sock it to them on new and second hand automobiles, motor equipment, tires, tubes, photographic equipment, phonograph records, radios, mechanical refrigerators, motor cycles, clocks, watches, musical instruments and washing machines," he said.

Every automobile produced next year would be sold, he added, if a straight $100 tax were placed on every new car.

He opposed increases on such "non-competitive luxuries" as liquors, candy, toilet preparations, bowling alleys, cigars, cigarettes, matches, checking accounts, telephones, soft drinks, sporting goods, safety deposit boxes, club dues and trunks.

Henderson predicted that defense spending during the coming fiscal year would be $18,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000. This was the highest forecast yet made by a government official. Budget estimates in January placed the figure at $10,800,000,000.

Kerensky Believes Stalin Is Preparing To Fight With Axis

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Alexander Kerensky, former Russian premier who led the revolution against the Czarist government in 1917, expressed belief in an interview today that Joseph Stalin's assumption of the premiership indicated Soviet preparations to enter the war on the side of the Axis powers.

Kerensky, long a foe of Stalin, said he believed Stalin's action was "due to recent developments in the war which may soon bring Soviet Russia into direct military collaboration with Germany in the middle east."

Russian troops, he added, were being concentrated in positions from which they could strike into Iran and pass through Transcaucasia into Turkey.

Mother's Day Service At Meade Sunday

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., May 7 (AP)—A special Mother's day religious service will be held on the Twenty-ninth division parade field Sunday morning under the direction of Lieut-Col. Frederick C. Reynolds, division chaplain.

The service, which will begin at 10 a. m. EST, will include music by a massed band, a massing of regimental colors, singing by a vested choir and a processional in which the choir, commanding officers of the division and division chaplains will take part.

The sermon will be given by Dr. Morris S. Lazarus, rabbi of the Madison avenue temple, Baltimore, and Chaplain Reynolds and regimental chaplains will participate in the service.

Major General Milton A. Reckord, Twenty-ninth division commander will speak briefly.

Maryland Bankers Elect Officers At Hagerstown

Also Hear Speeches and Discussions of World Problems

HAGERSTOWN, May 7 (AP)—Group two of the Maryland Bankers Association elected tonight three banker-farmers to direct its destinies for the next fiscal year, passed a resolution favoring a substitution of documentary stamps for a proposed federal tax on bank checks and heard two of the administration's financial officers discuss the part banks must play in the national defense effort.

R. F. Green, president of the Farmers Bank and Trust Company of Rockville, was elected chairman of group two and embraces Frederick, Montgomery, Carroll and Howard and Washington counties. J. H. Cunningham, cashier of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Westminster was elected vice-chairman and Benjamin L. Shuff, vice-president and trust officer of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Frederick was named secretary-treasurer.

Charles S. Garland, Baltimore, financial consultant to the Office of Production Management and B. M. Edwards, Charlestown, S. C., assistant secretary of the treasury, were the principal speakers.

John D. Holliday, retiring chairman, this city, presided.

Garland told the bankers at their annual spring dinner meeting that they must "see that the wheels of productive industry are kept oiled with necessary private funds."

He told the bankers to urge upon "your customers an intelligent participation in the sub-contracting program" in the national defense effort.

Garland asked the bankers to give full aid to the treasury in the sale of defense obligations and to "keep watch over our financial problems in order to preserve for the future our traditional heritage of free enterprise under the capitalist system."

Edwards asked the bankers to educate the public to buy defense savings bonds, thus providing working capital when the emergency is over.

Touching on world conditions the speaker declared we must "see that defense is complete in every respect."

Nazis Continue To Claim Victory

German Press Insists England Will Fall in Spite of U. S.

BERLIN, May 7 (AP)—The German press tonight revived an old theme—"England will fall"—as the Wilhelmstrasse reiterated, "the consequences we have often talked about will follow attempts of the United States to come to her aid."

A spokesman said these "consequences" meant the repeated declarations by Adolf Hitler and his aides that any ship taking materials to England, whether conveyed or not, is considered fair prey for German submarines.

The suggestion by U. S. Secretary of War Stimson that the navy be used to insure delivery of American materials to Britain was placed by Germans in the category with previous speeches by Secretaries Hull and Knox: "Attempts of United States policy to involve that nation in a war which Germans consider England has already practically lost."

Dienst Aus Deutschland, well-placed German commentary which is a frequent mirror of the official German attitude, asserted:

"Stimson's declarations are considered to be a noteworthy contribution to the elucidation of White House policies and their tendencies."

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, terming Stimson's address "the third emanation of his master's voice," added:

Chairman of ICC

St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, asserted:

"The railroads of the nation today are on their mettle."

Must Increase Efficiency

Railroads have "demonstrated ability to handle heavy troop movements," Scandrett said, but "efficiency must be increased where possible."

Eastman said one way to avoid the danger of management "conservatism" toward assuming financial obligations in an effort to safeguard the interests of owners was for the federal government "to assume the financial burden of additional transportation facilities which are needed only in anticipation of defense demands and which have no relation to the normal needs of transportation properties."

Another "danger" listed by the commission chairman is that the transportation problem will be dealt with too much as though it were a railroad problem exclusively.

"Diversion of ships to overseas work," he continued, "will prevent water carriers from holding up their end to the extent which otherwise would be possible, but the trucks and pipe lines may be of crucial importance."

Hitler Told by Willkie America Will Defeat Him

'You Have Never Met any People Like Us' Republican Says

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie told a "freedom rally" in Madison Square Garden tonight that America must insure "the safe delivery of war materials to Britain" by "convoys—patrolling—airplane accompaniment—or what not" and then flung this declaration at Adolf Hitler:

Lessons from a Special Congressional Election

TWO LESSONS carry into the Sixth congressional campaign now under way from the similar special congressional election held recently in the Buffalo, N. Y., district, comment on which has heretofore been made in these columns.

One is that pure sentiment, or, as it has been termed in political jargon, the "sympathy racket", does not carry the appeal it did for a number of years when it was the practice to give the widow of a member of Congress the nomination to fill her husband's seat for the remainder of his term just because she happened to be a widow. In such cases in the past the widow has invariably been elected. Voters apparently think nowadays that more than widowhood is requisite in these crucial times than back in the days of comparative tranquility.

The other lesson, as was pointed out by Representative J. William Ditter, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee, is that the American people "still regard an alert and aggressive minority as a vital part of the American constitutional scheme and an effective check upon one-man government."

The Buffalo district — it is the Forty-second New York district — had been Democratic continuously since 1918. It was the home district of Senator Mead. Mead had been representative from this district for eight years prior to his election to the Senate in 1940. Both in the House and in the Senate, Mead had been a New Deal wheel-horse and a most reliable rubber stamp.

Plus L. Schwert took Mead's seat in January, when Mead went to the Senate, and died on March 11, 1941. His widow sought the place for the remainder of the term. The New Deal made every effort to elect her, going so far as to send a personal plea into the district from Representative McCormick, the House floor leader on the Democratic side.

The successful candidate, John C. Butler, was opposed by the widow, Mrs. Hattie E. Schwert; by Edward P. Radman, described as a "New Deal Republican," and by Lloyd E. Kinsey, a leftist Progressive. When the votes were counted, Mr. Butler had 15,100; Mrs. Schwert, 13,753; Mr. Radman, 7,782, and Mr. Kinsey, 728.

As heretofore noted, no issue of national defense, nor aid to Britain nor of the St. Lawrence seaway project was raised in the special Buffalo district election. Mr. Butler and Mrs. Schwert both supported the administration on the defense and aid issues, just as Representative Baldwin, Republican, and his Democratic opponent did in the Seventeenth New York district; and all the nominees opposed the seaway project as inimical to the interests of the district and the nation. However, Senator Mead, in his campaign for Mrs. Schwert, declared that "the eyes of the nation" were on the district and that Mrs. Schwert should be sent to Washington to uphold the hands of the president 100 per cent. He and other New Deal party leaders demanded victory "for the party, our leader and your own prestige."

The election of Butler was the occasion for some elation on the part of Republicans for the reason that it followed another victory in the Seventeenth district of New York, where Representative Baldwin, a Republican, was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Kenneth F. Simpson, also a Republican. While it is true that the district was regarded as a Republican district, the Democrats put forth special efforts to win it in the by-election, and the district had been fairly close. Baldwin's percentage of the vote cast was greater than that given Simpson last year.

The results of these two special congressional elections seem to indicate a growing national sentiment for a strong and vigilant Congress. It can be strengthened by adding to needed opposition therein as the Democratic majority is too lopsided to afford adequate division with the more careful study and more painstaking effort that provides in the examination of the vital issues with which the country is confronted from day to day. The more critical analysis and the less rubber stamping we have of those issues the better it will be.

Maryland Really In War Now

MARYLANDERS who are of the opinion that we are in war already are quite correct about it in one respect, and those who do not so believe may as well accept the fact. War is being waged right here in the state. It is a new kind against the Japanese beetle.

From College Park comes the announcement that an army of 500,000,000 nematodes—a meat-eating, wormlike parasite—is being moved up into battle positions against the 1941 onslaught of the pesky beetle.

These parasites will be one phase of a "biological complex" directed against the destructive beetle, according to Dr. E. N. Cory, state entomologist at the University of Maryland. The other fighters in the "complex" are milky white disease and the typhus wasp.

The nematode—ranging from 1.1 to 2.87 millimeters long—usually attacks the body of the beetle grub, the underground stage of the Japanese beetle's life cycle, but also has been known to attack the adult insect as it emerges from the ground.

Dr. Cory and his associates say the nematodes would be deposited in the worst-infested areas of Maryland in plots of twenty, fifty and 1,000 square feet, at the rate of 5,000 parasites to the square foot. The beetles themselves will spread the colonies of nematodes.

Nematodes, with an appetite for veal, were themselves a nuisance until a New Jersey state laboratory discovered its propensity for Japanese beetles about five years ago. The nematode feeds also on about fifteen other insects.

The milky white disease, a spore-producing bacillus, already has been widely distributed throughout Maryland. Tests show it kills as many as eighty per cent of the beetle grubs. Colonies of the typhus wasp also have been established.

If this war will eventually conquer the Japanese beetle, it will be gratifying not only to farmers but also to all whose plants have been stripped by them. A possible saving in costs over the older expensive warfare against the beetle will also be gratifying.

Oil Shipments That Need Investigation

THE NECESSITY for constant watchfulness on the part of our national legislators is again to be noted in the introduction of a measure at Washington providing for a broad congressional investigation of the extent to which the Axis powers are receiving war materials from the Western Hemisphere.

Senator Gillette, of Iowa, and Representative Coffee, of Washington, have introduced the measure in the Senate and the House, respectively. It would create an investigating body of five senators and five representatives, and grant it $20,000 to finance the study.

An aide to Coffee said such an investigation would cover shipments from the United States and other American countries, via Russia or any other route.

"I am informed," Gillette said, "that there are international oil companies that are supplying the Axis powers with heavy lubricants, fuel oil and other petroleum products. It was testified before the Senate Foreign Relations committee that oil from the South American properties of American corporations is actually being delivered to German and Italian tankers in the Canary Islands."

That sort of thing, of course, should be stopped.

No Issue at Present On Aid to Britain

NO ISSUE can be raised as to the question of aid for Great Britain and its allies by the Democrats of the Sixth congressional district in the campaign now being waged for the seat in the national House of Representatives. A Charles Stewart, the Republican nominee, is in favor of that aid.

But, an issue might be raised by this question, and a serious issue at that, if war emotionalism should be allowed to dwarf sound, sober thought. In supplying material aid to Britain should be construed as forthwith plunging into bloody, shooting war, without regard to the possibilities of furnishing it without doing so, then there should be serious consideration of all factors involved.

Stewart would favor such means and methods of furnishing all possible aid to Britain first short of actual war, and as this newspaper views it, that correctly registers the sentiment of the vast majority of the people of this district. They don't want to get into the war unless there is no way of escaping it. Memories of what happened during the World War and after it substantiate that viewpoint.

This is the season of the year when the average man seems to lose his power to read and understand English—as the myriad fingerprints around "Fresh Paint" signs indicate.

Rest taken before physical exertion, says a medical authority, is more valuable than rest taken afterward. Better clip this out and save to show the boss the next time you're late.

Public consumption of tobacco and beer is again to be cut drastically in Germany — news item. There's one country in which the government aids one to keep his New Year's resolution.

Streamlining

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Do you remember that automobile of a few years ago that was the last word in extreme streamlining? . . . The one that survived only a couple of years and then its manufacturer had to retreat to a more conventional design.

The trouble was that people simply refused to accept his intelligent ideas. A small group disliked them intensely. Another small group was enthusiastic. And a third much larger group couldn't make up its mind then about streamlining but will eventually accept such ideas and like them very much indeed.

I belonged to the third group but found myself slipping toward the second group just when the manufacturer decided to back up a few years and creep up on the public taste with minor changes from year to year.

In fact, we're not ever accustomed yet to the streamline design. You remember the old family phaeton with a lazy horse in front. You remember the old wagons, the old automobiles. Your eye tells you that an automobile should be sharp in front to cut the wind, and you don't realize that your eye is mistaken and that the fastest automobile might be square in front and shaped like a pear in the rear.

But the design of that tear-drop automobile was really beautiful because it was scientifically right. A design isn't worth anything unless it means something. And the only meaning an automobile can possibly have is to produce increased speed or power with lower consumption of gasoline. They will go faster, with less consumption of fuel—and that's the Modern Idea.

I think it's the right one. I think it's the right idea for everything, for every human being in this age, too. The automobile men scrapped many an old idea that looked all right but was really wrong—that is what nearly everybody is doing today. Not as definitely, not as clearly, as the automobile men are doing it, but in many ways. . . . We want to get more out of life than we put into it, or rather we want to get more than we have been getting out of it.

We shouldn't be interested in more speed, but we should be interested in the true economy of living easily, naturally, happily, properly. And even if we must turn our entire point of view around on the old chassis, we MUST do it. Because we know in our hearts that we must from now on have a NEW design for living.

Reserve Transport Quite Necessary, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, May 7.—This country has the best system of automobile bus and truck transportation in the world.

It also has the best system of air-transport lines. It is now confronted with the task of working a miracle in motorizing overnight its land forces and providing adequate aerial transport for a new vast army.

The air transport commercial lines have already been denied further supplies of passenger planes except a small fraction of those already in production. The automotive plants have already been curtailed twenty percent in operation for civilian production and we are told that this is just a beginning. With all her problems, Germany is still providing planes for overseas commercial transport planes. There are some stories, hard to confirm, that some of our transport planes furnished to the British are being used on British commercial lines.

Study Is Needed

It is the easy way, in motorizing our army to restrict production for normal civilian uses. If that is the necessary way nobody will complain, but some thought should be given to whether it is the necessary way or even the best way.

Transport planes of the passenger type strictly for the movement of troops are used only occasionally. The same thing is largely true of motor trucks and busses for the mere movement of troops and supplies. This does not refer to the armored, motorized, mechanized and armed motorized equipment of all sorts for the panzer divisions. This is highly specialized modern military equipment of A-1 priority and indispensably exclusive military control.

But what sense is there in duplicating a vast civilian equipment for transport only to immobilize them hub-to-hub or wing-to-wing in vast idle parks for transportation only? The personnel to organize, operate and maintain them, if not amateur and unproved, is certainly not comparable to the highly trained men and remarkably efficient organizations of the commercial lines.

Reserve Planning Is Doubtful

In all this supposed general-staff planning and drain-work, what effort has been made to organize, experiment with and prepare to use as a force in reserve at least the vast aerial and ground motorized transport of the United States to the end that without duplication and without unnecessary impairment of civilian services it can answer any reasonably expected call for the transport of armies and munitions anywhere and any time?

The maintenance of civilian morale is a principal object of good general staff work in modern war. There is a possibility here too of immensely speeding up to the motorization if not the mechanization, and armament of our new forces.

One Way of Approach

The recent highly sensible step, proved by experience, of organizing all war-affected industries into "war-service-committees" of believers in each industry to help to solve the government's industrial problems offers a way at least to approach an informed and expert study of this highly promising field.

It probably won't be done until it is too late to reap maximum benefits. That is the trouble with panic action—hurry to the rescue at the last minute without sufficient study and regardless of expense. It is so much easier to crack down with arbitrary restrictions on the manufacture of commercial transport planes and interchangeable civilian equipment for motor transport than it is to try to make the most intelligent and least disruptive use of the commercial facilities we have—possibly to much better advantage to all interests concerned.

A PLAY BY A. HITLER

War Will Be Determined by the Sum Of Many Factors, Mark Sullivan Says

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

From 1904 to 1938 inclusive Maryland sawmills manufactured 3,301,502,000 board feet of lumber of which forty-nine percent was hardwood and fifty-one percent softwood.

The best samples of red clover seed will run 30,000 plant-producing seeds to the ounce, while the average will be about 15,000 seeds.

A wheat supply well above the level which calls for a marketing quota continues in prospect on the basis of the spring wheat intentions-to-plant report, according to R. O. Stelzer, executive officer for the AAA in Maryland.

Thresher-run red clover seed will average about eighty percent "clean" seed, according to F. S. Holmes, chief of the Maryland Seed Inspection Laboratory. He says that much of the twenty percent loss is through weed seeds, other kinds of crop seeds, trash, or "inert matter."

With the general theme of "American—Our Heritage," the program for the Rural Women's Short Course at the University of Maryland on June 16 to 21 is about complete. It is announced by Miss Venia M. Keller, assistant director of the extension service, who has been in charge of the course since its inauguration nineteen years ago. Judging by past years, she estimates that approximately 900 women from all counties in the state will attend.

Daring the Decibels

From the Christian Science Monitor

No dog has a bark worse than the bite of the average automobile horn, even when the bite is muzzled to eighty-two decibels at 100 feet. This is a legal measure for automobile horns in New York City. It was announced the other day, after three and a half months had been spent by experts on traffic sound effects.

Eighty-two decibels at 100 feet is about the same amount of noise as a lion would make roaring too close for a pedestrian's comfort. The point of permitting automobile horns to match a lion's roar is obvious. But pedestrians who would run from a lion will walk right up to an automobile, though the latter appears from all statistics to be the more dangerous animal.

The problem, a root is not one of decibels, of course, but of manners. Tooters and tooters know this. But until they show that they prefer civilization they will be subject to the rough laws of "dare-you-to-hit-me" and eighty-two decibels, and authorities will have constantly to be striking some sort of balance between frightening the pedestrian and taming the motorist.

Morning Motto

I always make the most of my moments, and though I do not cast my eyes away from troubles, I pack them into as small a compass as I can for myself and never let them annoy others. — ROBERT SOUTHEY.

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Colonel Lindbergh, in his latest radio speech, argued—indeed asserted—that Britain cannot win the war.

This has started, or coincided with, a large amount of examination and utterances by persons of various degrees of expertise. There is much dissent from Col. Lindbergh's conclusion. Most of the discussion goes on the assumption that airplanes will be the decisive factor. Those who think Britain can win say that presently Britain, with our aid, will have enough planes to defend herself against the German air attacks; and that, with that, still more planes, Britain can carry the air war into Germany.

About this, Col. Lindbergh's quite startling statement was: "The area and geographical position of the British Isles, make it impossible to base enough aircraft within them to equal in strength the aircraft that can be based on the continent of Europe." This amounts to saying that no conceivable quantity of airplanes that we can make for Britain can enable her to win.

True at Present

Col. Lindbergh supported his position by saying that, "British objectives are now much more accessible to German bombers than German objectives are to British bombers." This is true, at the present time. The Germans possess airports on the coast of France, within thirty to fifty miles of the English coast. A German bomber can fly to London, drop its bombs, and return to its base in perhaps an hour. On the other hand, a British bomber, in order to reach an objective on German soil, must consume some hours.

Obviously the German advantage is greater to say just how great would involve intricate calculation. It is not merely that a German bomber can make two or three trips in the time it takes a British bomber to make one. The German consumption of gasoline, to make a hit on British soil, is much less than the British must consume to make a hit on German soil. Further than that, because a German bomber needs less gasoline, it can carry a heavier and more destructive bomb.

Other Factors

How all this works out is impossible to be sure about. There are other factors—possession by the British of a greater quantity of gasoline, the difference in quality between British planes and German planes, the difference in skill and daring of pilots, the relation between bomber planes made for offense, and fighter planes made for defense.

The truth is, no expert knows how a battle for air supremacy works out—certainly no one knows from experience or precedent, for there has never been any such thing. Frequently the fate of nations, and the map of the world, has been determined by naval battles, by supremacy on the sea, often determined in a single battle of a few hours' or days' duration.

About that there are whole libraries of books, thousands of technicians are familiar with that. But if we are now to see the fate of nations, and the map of the world, determined by a contest for air supremacy, there is no precedent from which we can get light.

No Finish Fight

We know that the contest in the air will differ fundamentally from contests on the sea. Navies, or individual naval vessels, meet each other, stand up to each other, and shoot it out to a finish. But planes fly past each other. It does not happen that armadas of planes, or the whole air forces of nations, come together in a single decisive battle. Apparently the final efficacy of planes depends not on what they do to each other, but on what they do to the armies, navies, cargo ships, buildings and peoples of the opposing nations.

Col. Lindbergh seemed also to doubt that the United States can necessarily make more planes than Germany. On this point we, in Britain, have a population of some 200 millions, possessing great skill in mechanical production. Germany has some eighty millions. True, she has also now, opportunity to use the factories of Italy, France, Belgium and Holland. The quantity and quality of the planes she can get from unwilling conquered peoples must be inferior.

Better Planes Possible

It is difficult to doubt that when America achieves full quantity production we, with Britain, will make more and better planes than Germany. Also, if and when Britain has more and better planes than Germany, she may be able to blast the Germans out of their present air bases in France and drive them back to where they will lose their present advantage in distance.

While air supremacy is important, the outcome of the war will not be determined by a single duel in the air, as past wars have sometimes been decided, by single duels between navies, or between armies. The outcome of this war will be determined by the sum of many factors—armies, seapower, economic factors of blockade, relative natural resources, morale of peoples. To suggest which side will "win," it is necessary to define that word. If Britain winning means Britain surviving, experts believe that Britain can successfully resist conquest. If Britain winning means Britain conquering Germany, many doubt whether this can be accomplished without a larger army than it seems feasible to land on German soil.

More Sensible Examinations

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

One of the most serious imperfections in the present selective service system, in imperfection that was apparent from the first day of operation of the system, finally has been acted upon by the War department. Under existing regulations, selectees were not given the regular army physical examination until after they had left their jobs, severed their ties with civilian life and arrived at an induction center.

As a result, many were rejected although they had passed the relatively easy preliminary physical examinations. Those who were rejected then had to go back to the homes and try to get their jobs back. In the majority of cases their old jobs already had been filled by their employer thought they had been inducted into the army.

Now the War department announces that during May, selected men in Pennsylvania will be given the complete physical examination before they report to the induction centers. If the plan proves successful it will be extended to all other states. And even if this particular plan does not prove successful, the War department should not stop there. In simple fairness, selected men some plan should be worked out to obviate the unnecessary confusion and hardships that are inflicted upon hundreds of young men every time quotas are filled.

Steps Are Taken To Combat Germ Danger from War

According to some estimates, the great plague of London, in 1664 and 1665, took the lives of three-fourths of the population. The authorities combated it by shutting off an infected house and putting on the door a red cross, and the words, "God have mercy on us." Those within were left to perish.

Two and a half centuries is a short stretch of time, but a far cry to the bombproof American Red Cross-Harvard University hospital, now being built in London. This is the first completely equipped, adequately staffed hospital for the study of communicable diseases which always follows closely on the wake of war. Prefabricated walls and roof plates are being made here and shipped to London for rapid assembly. There will be twenty-two separate buildings, each with the best attainable apparatus for special study.

Dr. John E. Gordon, professor of preventive medicine at Harvard University, one of the originators of the hospital plan, is the liaison between the British and American germ-defense forces. As an epidemiologist, previously engaged in health administration in Detroit, he has studied and fought epidemics in the Balkans, and is superbly equipped for the high command in this age-old battle against the deadly camp-followers of battle.

There is cosmic irony in the building of a bombproof shelter under which there is a mobilization of the humane intelligence of the planet against disease. The citation of two books gives the idea, "Men against Death," by Paul de Kruif, and "Man against Himself," by Dr. Karl Menninger, both of recent years. Any planetary visitor—let's not make it Mars this time—surely would be puzzled by our joint efforts to kill each other and save each other. If there was a loud peepson every time a germ killed anybody, we would have a vivid realization that these patient and heroic scientists are indeed, "Men against Death."

In the World War, epidemics took a heavier toll of life than did all the tanks, guns and flame-throwers of the battle field. Killing honors went to the germs, or the filterable virus, or whatever these sub-microscopic gangsters may be. And it may be so again, unless scientists, including Dr. Gordon, can consolidate our gains of the years between. That is what they are trying to do. Not thousands, but millions of lives may depend on the success of their efforts.

As the "Man against Himself" there may come in some fruitful research which will explain and end that specific killing urge. It is not just a pious hope. It is the one chance of race survival. The germs follow their star of empire westward. The plague of Athens, described by Thucydides, more deadly than the German legions of today, came from the East. And so did the dreadful plague which spread over the Roman world in the years from 165 to 180 A. D.

The bubonic plague, which first appeared in Europe in the reign of Justinian in the Sixth century, came from Turkey as did the frightful "Black Death" which ravaged all Europe in the Fourteenth century. At the end of the World War, the influenza epidemic, and the many thousands of deaths, gave us disquieting proof that germs, even pressing westward, can leap 3,000 miles of ocean.

Perhaps our isolation has saved us from the savage epidemics which have swept Europe and Asia. But we have been warned and there appears to be no more safe isolation from even these enemies of life. Both a fortress and an intelligence post in the enemy's country is Dr. Gordon's bombproof hospital.

World scientists met at Harvard several years ago and founded a parliament of science, a united front against all the foes of civilization. Some of them deduced an organic character in human society in which inter-related and inseparable, and are jointly and severally the penalty for our failure to attain a rational organization of life. The Bible says, "Resist not evil," but it adds "Overcome evil with good."

The first, alone, might seem immoral doctrine. But, with the latter, we find an affirmation of what we might call constructive peace and constructive health and constructive civilization. In other words, to build a world civilization would be the best defense against wars and disease.

es that during May, selected men in Pennsylvania will be given the complete physical examination before they report to the induction centers. If the plan proves successful it will be extended to all other states. And even if this particular plan does not prove successful, the War department should not stop there. In simple fairness, selected men some plan should be worked out to obviate the unnecessary confusion and hardships that are inflicted upon hundreds of young men every time quotas are filled.

Unless this major imperfection in the selective service system is eliminated, dissatisfaction and criticism will increase until public opinion will be adversely affected.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

NATALIE SAW THAT there was a mist of tears in Mrs. Edmonds' eyes as she told her story, and that her soft, almost childish chin quivered a little.

"So the lovely Estelle heaved a monkey-wrench, eh?" said Natalie, purposely callous, in the hope of pulling Mrs. Edmonds back from unhappy memories.

Mrs. Edmonds looked a trifle disconcerted, so that Natalie knew her remark had served its purpose. Mrs. Edmonds stiffened a little, as though she resented Natalie's levity, and said a trifle coldly, "She and Willie were married the week after his graduation."

"What rotten luck for you!" Natalie said gently.

Betsy made a sympathetic murmur and Mrs. Edmonds relaxed a little, once more conscious of her sympathy.

"It wasn't at all a happy marriage," she confided. "Estelle was dazlingly beautiful, and she'd been brought up in luxury. But she had a wicked temper. She used to fly into terrible rages at the slightest excuse. I'm afraid she made things pretty uncomfortable for poor Willie. She used to act up quite a bit around the army posts where Willie was stationed. Then when their baby was born—it was stillborn, you see, and the doctor said it was because of an accident she'd had when she insisted on going riding after she'd been warned not to—well, she very nearly died. And when she came out of the hospital—"

She was still, shuddering a little. Natalie put out a swift, comforting hand and laid it on hers, saying gently, "Don't tell us if you'd rather not."

"But I'd like you to know, I mean—well, it must seem pretty silly to you, two people our age honeymooning like—like two children—"

"A week or two after Estelle came home from the hospital," she went on after a moment, "he woke up one night to see a shadowy figure standing over him. He switched on the light, and it was Estelle in her nightgown, standing over him with a butcher knife in her hand—"

"Good heavens!" gasped Natalie in horror.

Mrs. Edmonds nodded. "She was quite mad, you see," she went on in that patient, gentle voice. "And of course everybody understood then a lot of things that had puzzled them—quiver things she had done and said. She was violent and quite dangerous, and she had to be sent away to an institution. That was 16 years ago. She passed away a year ago."

Natalie sat up and stared at Mrs. Edmonds.

"And you've been waiting patiently—I mean, you were still in love with your precious Willie, and waiting—" she began.

"I never loved anyone but Willie," answered Mrs. Edmonds quietly. "So I just went on living in the old house my father had left me and working in Judge Hargrove's office as his secretary, and making what I could out of my life. When Willie came to me and told me that he was free and that he'd never stopped loving me, even though he HAD lost his head that June week and for a little while believed it was Estelle—well, it didn't seem sensible for us not to have what happiness we could after all the years of waiting."

"You poor lamb!" said Natalie huskily.

"I'm afraid I'm not a very good wife," said Mrs. Edmonds in a little burst of honesty. "Living alone for so long, with no one to think about but myself, and—well, not having to consider anybody else's wishes, it's made me selfish and opinionated, and not very adaptable, I'm afraid."

"Nonsense!" said Betsy because now she could steady her voice enough to speak strongly. "He adores you and you're mad about him, and when two people are crazy about each other, that's all that matters. You're the kind of wife he wants and that's all you should care about."

Natalie stared at Betsy and Betsy felt her color mounting. A little later, when Mrs. Edmonds had gone away, Natalie, staring out at the ocean, said half under her breath, "So THAT'S this thing called love! Waiting all these years—and they say romance is dead."

"Oh, no, it isn't," said Betsy sturdily. "Romance isn't dead. Of course I admit it may not be doing so well just at present—but anyway, it's not dead."

She sat up on an elbow and stared at Natalie with sudden severity.

"Such talk!" she scoffed. "And from a bride on her honeymoon! What do you mean 'romance is dead'?"

Natalie turned over so that her face was half hidden in the crook of a browned arm, and she said huskily, "Oh—Brooks and I don't believe in love."

Betsy's eyes widened. "Believe in it? Good grief, woman, you don't HAVE to believe in it—any more than you believe that air and sunshine exist. It's just—well, something that's THERE. You go along all peaceful and dull and it's just an ordinary day and an ordinary sun and people who are dull—" and then all of a sudden, bang! You run smack into a certain person and the sky gets bluer and the sun gets brighter and it's the most glorious world—" She broke off, feeling Natalie's startled eyes on her face.

"Is that the way it is with you and Tom?" Natalie asked steadily.

Betsy felt as though she had taken a step in the dark and fallen headlong. She drew a long breath and looked away from Natalie's intent, almost beseeching eyes, and was still for a long moment. Somehow, she couldn't lie to Natalie—and that was pretty crazy, too. But she couldn't help it.

"No," she said grimly, still avoiding Natalie's eyes, "it's not that way with Tom and me."

"Are you trying to tell me that you're in love with somebody else?"

Betsy sat erect, lifted herself to her feet with swift, effortless grace and, dusting the palms of her hands free of clinging grains of sand, she said stiffly, "I'm not trying to tell you anything at all. You simply made a silly remark about there not being anything in this business of being in love—and in the face of what Mrs. Edmonds has just told you. I simply tried to point out that love DOES exist—"

Natalie was on her feet now. She put a hand over Betsy's and said quickly, "Then you ARE in love, and it's not Tom—poor darling. How did you ever make such a ghastly mistake?"

"It happens that—the man I love is married to someone else," Betsy said between her teeth. "And I think I'd rather not talk about it any more, if you don't mind. I've tons of things to do at the Hacienda—if you'll excuse me?"

She was very cold and very polite. It was as though suddenly she had erected a barrier between herself and Natalie that could not be scaled. Natalie watched her as she went swiftly up the beach. "The poor little fool!" Natalie said under her breath. "Married to a perfectly swell person like Tom Forman—and eating her heart out for another man! If that's love—I'll take spinach!"

She was still on the beach a little later when she saw Tom and Brooks and Donald coming toward her. At the sight of Brooks, tall and darkly brown and very handsome in his bathing trunks, a towel slung carelessly about his shoulders, her heart leaped. It was an emotion that shook her so badly that she was conscious of a faint feeling of shock and dismay underlying the exquisite excitement that sent little thrills chasing through her.

"So you'll take spinach, will you?" she told herself shakily. "You poor fool. It's too late for you to take anything except Brooks, bless him—if you can get him, which I doubt."

She had a feeling of being breathless and incoherent, although she hadn't spoken a word aloud. When the men joined her, she was trembling a little and she could not meet Brooks' eyes. She turned to the other two men, gay and charming and vivacious, ignoring Brooks so pointedly that he looked at her curiously, frowning a little in complete bewilderment.

A Rose Bush

Has an 'In'

DURANGO, Colo. (AP)—A rose bush outside the home of J. R. Cheney pushed one of its shoots through a tiny crack between the lower and upper window sashes. The shoot grew and thrived in the warm room and finally burst into bloom completely unaware that winter still was king outside where its roots were buried.

The Phoenicians were the first people to devote themselves principally to commerce.

Seventy-seven Conditional Sales Contracts Filed at Court House

Fears that manufacture of new cars will be curtailed because of the national defense program are reflected in the unusual number of conditional sales contracts filed for record in the office of Circuit Court Clerk Robert Jackson.

The large volume of the contracts, noticeable for the past several weeks, reached a climax yesterday when seventy-seven were recorded, most of them for the purchase of automobiles.

In addition to the contracts, four deeds, three mortgages and two chattel mortgages were filed.

Deeds included:

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Shimer, of Bedford, Pa., to Jacob C. Reiman, of Stoneycreek Township, Pa., three lots in Cumberland, one on Bellevue street, another on Railroad street in the Narrows addition and a third on Elm street in Haley's addition.

El Paso railroad worker found his money, $300 worth of clothes, quarter-hour honeymoon very cost—and a new automobile. He complained to the priest who performed the marriage ceremony last night, however, over "waste of fifteen minutes after the wedding time," pointing out he had been the bride disappeared with $100 of courting her three years.

Belle, W. Va., DuPont Co. Man Says "The Indigestion Pains, Stomach Cramps From Gas and Tired Feeling Seem Done Away With"

Mr. Archie Sparks, Belle, near Charleston, W. Va., says: "I never miss a chance to boost World's Tonic to my friends. Previously, I was in bad shape because of constipation and the ailments which resulted from it. After eating would come bloating, belching, sour stomach and stomach cramps from gas. I had a lump in my throat and felt sleepy and stuffy after meals. Dizzy spells brought black spots passing in front of my eyes and often rheumatic-like kidney pains would come in my back. My tongue was rough and coated and my breath often very bad.

"Things are quite different since World's Tonic brought such splendid relief from constipation and the ailments it caused. The dizzy bilious spells with spots in front of my eyes seem done away with and the rheumatic-like kidney pains are not coming so, in my back. I eat big meals, now, without such distress from bloating or belching, and sleep so soundly at night that the tired nervous feeling is going away."

Parachute Is Not Fast Enough

HELENA, Mont. (AP)—A pretty girl student in a CAA flying course was up with her instructor when he suddenly cut the throttle, simulating a dead motor. "What would you do if such a thing actually occurred to you?" he asked, expecting the stock reply: "I'd choose a spot to land and set the ship down." The girl peered nervously around the plane and then answered: "I'd jump!" The wind blows in curves, never in a straight line.

DIGGING YOUR GRAVE
SOME PLAYERS dig their own graves with their mouths. Inability to keep them shut at the right time is a condition to the opponents which the latter capitalize by going ahead into a contract they had not even considered. This is especially true of some sacrifice bids, over the vulnerable opponents' constructively bid game contracts. It tells them about your own side's extreme weakness and also the extreme length of your side's suit, so that one or the other of them can visualize shortage in his partner's hand and therefore the likelihood of your unwillingness to remain inactive.

information. Also notice how, after the 3-No Trumps call by South, North had passed. In other words, the bidding was closed so far as the side was concerned.

When East then reopened it, with his 4-Spades, palpably a sacrifice call, he advertised first the extreme weakness of his side in high cards, and second the side's large number of spades. South therefore could easily read his partner's singleton, having three himself. His 5-Club bid indicated his desire to take advantage of the distribution and ruffing possibilities. When North then showed he had good high card strength with his 5-No Trumps, despite his denial of two aces, South logically tried the slam in clubs.

West led his spade 5 to the A. Six clubs followed, and the heart 9 was then sent through to the J. The remaining five tricks went to the spade K, heart A, K, and 10 and the diamond A. West was duly sorry he reopened the bidding.

Adopted Child Should Be Told, Says Dr. Myers

Parents Should Help Their Children To Cultivate Conscience

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

A good man years ago in a little red school house I wrote in my copy book "Strive to keep alive in thy breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience." - George Washington. I then believed, as did those who reared and taught me, that there was such a thing as conscience. I still believe there is. In my youth I often heard the word referred to. During the past twenty-five years, I have rarely heard the word or seen it in print. It seems to have almost entirely vanished from textbooks for teachers, books on character education, even on religious education.

Instead of conscience has grown up the expression, "What is the best thing to do right now?" Interpreted and practiced by many, it means, "What you can get away with." What you can get away with unapprehended is right, what you get caught at is wrong.

In the modern school, especially high school, there are not many ways for a student to do wrong without being apprehended. Outside of school the student is on his own. He may not be discovered in wrong doing, so his conscience in wrong doing. What are the school and home and church doing to make growing boys and girls want to choose to do right when no one can see them or is likely to catch them?

Is Remorse Harmful?

Conscience is made up chiefly of feelings. With a good conscience one feels worried and unhappy at choosing and doing what one knows is right. This tendency to feel out of our earlier habits, feelings and ideals which are associated chiefly with those we have loved and respected.

Recently at Boston, before the New England regional meeting of the Child Welfare League of America, I heard Dr. Frederick Rosenheim, Psychiatrist of the Judge Baker Guidance Clinic, say: "There is much to be said for the oft-quoted New England conscience. We have made too much fun of good character and religion. Too long we have assumed that religion understands only the good in man and psychology only the bad. Having analyzed the problems in a person we need to be able to make him want to struggle to be better and to show him how."

In the forum I asked Dr. Rosenheim about the "fashionable" warning by some specialists against remorse. His was the common sense reply that remorse is bad only if it hinders effort to improve in conduct and character, but very good if it helps. Now to be able to have remorse is to have a conscience. Don't we want our children to cultivate a good conscience which will help them strive to do right when they don't have to, when no one might know about it, or when they could avoid being caught?

A. Yes; you may have a copy of my "Home helps for poor spellers" by writing me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Daylight Saving
Time Discussed
At MeyersdaleCouncil Withholds Decision
To Find Out What
Other Towns Will Do

MEYERSDALE, Pa., May 7—The matter of the adoption of daylight saving time for Meyersdale was brought before the borough council for decision at its regular meeting last evening. Generously signed petitions both for and against the proposition were presented by Barron E. Shipley and David Ellis who also spoke, the former in favor and the latter in opposition to the proposal.

The action of council was that it all other sections of Somerset county adopt daylight saving, Meyersdale will go along, otherwise Meyersdale will continue to hold onto standard time. Similar petitions are being presented to the borough councils of all other towns in the county, it is represented. The farmers generally throughout the county are opposed to daylight saving time, and this being one of Pennsylvania's leading agricultural counties the farmers' attitude in the matter of changing time might prove a great factor in the fight.

Commissioners Will Pay Off Old Debt

MIDLAND, May 7—The mayor and council met this week and discussed the signing of a bill by the governor which affects Midland very much. This bill authorizes the Allegheny County Commissioners to pay the bond issue that the town has had outstanding since 1916.

The bond issue was floated then to pave the main highway through here. A checkup of the records shows that since that time the mayor and council has paid a total of $6250 in interest but has not been able to reduce the principal of $5,000 by as much as a cent. As matters stand now, the county will pay the debt at $1,000 per year and also pay the interest during that period but the town will not be refunded for any of the back interest.

Skilled Men May Be Deferred by Draft Officials

Boards Receive Orders from Baltimore following F.D.R.'s Statement

All local draft boards, appeal agents and boards of appeal have been notified by State Selective Service headquarters to exercise extreme care in classifying men who may be skilled in the operation of machines essential to national defense.

The notice referred the local draft officials to President Roosevelt's statement of May 2 in which he said that because of the critical situation which confronts the nation and the new twenty-four hour seven-day machine production schedule, the rolls of the army and of Selective Service and the manpower of the nation as a whole will be combed to insure that every man so skilled may be engaged in that capacity.

A minute check of all men in Class 1-A and men awaiting physical examination will be made to make certain no men vital to such work are inducted. P. Emmett Fahy, chief clerk of Board No. 2, said yesterday.

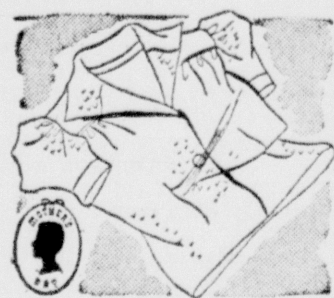

Even if a draftee or his employer are reluctant to claim occupational deferment, the local draft officials are urged to see that such men are given deferment if needed, in order that the interests of national defense are not defeated, the notice stated.

Dental Statute Unconstitutional, Hedrick Asserts

Baltimore Avenue Man Fights Prosecution under Advertising Law

The Maryland statute regulating advertising by dentists and dental laboratories is called "unconstitutional" by Dr. O. Ray Hedrick, of 223 Baltimore avenue, in defense of charges pending against him in circuit court.

Dr. Hedrick was arrested in January on charges he advertised his profession as a dentist in a manner prohibited by Section 11 of Article 32 of the Maryland code. Arraigned in trial magistrates court, he asked a jury trial, and the case was removed to circuit court.

Asks Dismissal
This week, James Alfred Ayvett, his attorney, filed a motion to quash the warrant, a demurrer to the warrant and a special plea in a move to have the case dismissed.

Ayvett first attacked the warrant as "bad in substance and insufficient in law," in that it "fails to state any offense over which the courts of the state have jurisdiction or for which a criminal penalty is provided."

The attorney contended that the statute cited in the warrant provides no penalty should the accused be found guilty and argued that it is a well-established principle of law that a man cannot be convicted of an act which is not punishable.

This argument, upheld by the court, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris asked and received permission to amend the warrant to charge violation of Section 24 of Article 32, a later statute which provides fine and imprisonment in case of conviction.

Unconstitutional, Attorney Says
With this ground for dismissal removed, Ayvett still contended that the statute is "unconstitutional as an invalid exercise of the police power, as discriminatory class legislation and as depriving the defendant of his liberty and property without due process of law as secured to him by the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

The matter was taken under advisement by Associate Judge William A. Huster.

Another case on the criminal appeals docket which the defendant sought to have dismissed on technical grounds was that of Albert Eyer, convicted by Magistrate Owen L. Porter, of Frostburg, of failure to pay a $240 bond allegedly owed to Mrs. Louise Caton, his mother-in-law, dating from 1938. Eyer was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction, with the sentence suspended on condition he pay the bill.

The case has been twice heard, once in October, 1940, and again in February of this year. Judge Huster granted a motion by Defense Attorney Elmer B. Gower that the first warrant be quashed, but overruled a similar motion concerning the second warrant.

Holds Charge Invalid
Gower contended that the charge was invalid, first, because it was barred by the statute of limitations, which he said prevented trial on a misdemeanor after one year, and second, because the warrant charged Eyer with violating in 1938 a statute passed by the legislature in 1939.

This motion was over-ruled by the court, which granted the state's attorney the right to remand the warrant to the magistrate for correction—presumably to make the charge violation of an earlier statute.

It was indicated that the defendant will next fight the case on the ground that the statute is unconstitutional, in that it violates the constitutional ban against imprisonment for debt.

Harris was assisted in the prosecution by Edward J. Ryan, representing Mrs. Caton.

Organ Recital Is Given by Gridley

Completes Third of Twelve Programs of Bach's Music

John S. Gridley's third in a series of twelve Bach organ music recitals was given Tuesday night in Centre Street Methodist church before an appreciative audience of over 100 persons.

Gridley started upon his gigantic task in the spring of 1939 and hopes to complete it in 1950. He intends to play the complete works of Bach in these annual recitals.

The Bach music is not generally accepted as entertainment in the true sense of the word but those who heard the program Tuesday night were entranced with the deep subtlety of Bach's works.

Tuesday's program is the largest of the twelve recitals although only eight numbers were included but they were all long and composed of difficult passages.

The program consisted of the Toccata and Fugue in D Minor; Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor; a magnificent number; the "Dorian" Toccata and Fugue in D Minor; the big Toccata and Fugue in E Major; the three part Toccata, Adagio and Fugue in C Major; and two other numbers, Fantasia and Fugue in A Minor and Fantasia and Fugue in C Minor.

Red Cross

at approximately $1,000,000 is now safe in a Mediterranean port.

"I wish to emphasize first of all the fact that there has been no loss of any supplies transported on a Red Cross ship flying the Red Cross flag. Such American ships, authorized by the Neutrality Act, can proceed into a combat area only with the consent of the blockading powers. Only three ships, namely, the S. S. McKeesport, the S. S. Cold Harbor and the S. S. Exmouth—all employed for the transportation of relief supplies to France—may be described as Red Cross ships.

Foods Shipped Free
"All other supplies to the various countries in which our relief operations are being carried on have been handled as commercial shipments. All of our shipments to Great Britain and to Greece have been carried without charge to the American Red Cross, and our shipments to Spain have been carried at a nominal cost through the co-operation of the Spanish government.

"Since October 1, 1939, the American Red Cross has forwarded 910 consignments to Great Britain in 369 steamers. Only eleven steamers carrying Red Cross supplies as a part of their cargoes have been reported lost to date. The total value of the Red Cross supplies so lost is $1,050,000, or approximately nine per cent of the total value of all shipments to Great Britain. Only three per cent of ships carrying Red Cross supplies to Great Britain have been lost at sea. The supplies which have been lost included supplies purchased with government funds and supplies purchased with Red Cross funds. A substantial part of these supplies has been covered by insurance."

Mystery Epidemic Makes 200 Sick In Coney, Midland

No Reason for Alarm, Authorities Say; Cause Remains Unknown

State and county health authorities are still working today in an effort to determine the cause of a mysterious epidemic of illness which has struck the Lonaconing-Midland area. More than 200 persons have been affected in the past week.

Dr. Theodore H. Shrop, county health officer, said last night that the illness, which involves stomach distress accompanied by nausea and diarrhea, is not considered alarming. There have been no fatalities, and the duration of the sickness is generally from twenty-four to thirty-six hours.

The epidemic is apparently subsiding and the physician expressed hope there would be no recurrence.

Tests have not been completed of water samples taken from homes where the illness has struck, but Dr. Shrop said that as a precautionary measure, all persons in the area have been advised to boil their drinking water. He emphasized that he was not attributing the epidemic to the water supply, but was recommending the boiling procedure as a natural precaution, pending the determination of the actual cause.

Several health nurses have been canvassing the area for the past week, making case studies in an effort to find some one item of diet that may be to blame.

Although every effort is thus being made to find the cause, it has not yet been established, Dr. Shrop said.

The matter was discussed at the meeting of the Midland town council this week, with City Clerk Frank P. Burns reporting on a conference with Dr. Shrop.

U. S. To Enter War, Dunkle Predicts

Indications are that the United States will be drawn into the European struggle, Dr. John L. Dunkle, president of Frostburg State Teachers college, told nearly fifty members of the Junior Extension club of Allegany county at its monthly meeting at the college last night.

The United States entered the last war and helped to win it, then walked off the scene, leaving the foe to sharpen its swords for the current conflict, said the educator, gloomily adding that it appeared that American men will have to go across to face sharper swords.

Speaking on "Making Democracy Work," Dr. Dunkle urged the youth to reach for security and strength rather than mere bigness and hailed the adaptability of the United States constitution to change.

Another speaker was Harry W. Beggs, assistant county agent, who discussed "Gardening and National Defense." He urged every person who had ground available to cultivate a garden on it to meet his family's needs and to avoid the rising cost of living.

Plans were discussed for the dance to be held by the club Saturday night at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, with music by Jimmie Andrews and his band.

Miss Mildred Webber, president of the college club, presided and introduced the speakers.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell O'Neal, Bedford road.

Whiskey Best of Pain-killers, Doctor Tells Association

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 7.—(P)—A Cornell University professor said today that a two-ounce drink of straight whiskey was one of the cheapest and best pain-killers known to man.

"It is cheaper than morphine," Dr. Harold G. Wolff told the American Association of American Physicians, "and has substantially the same effect, except that alcohol does not have a sickening effect after long use. Of course alcohol is habit forming, but an alcohol habit is less difficult to deal with than a morphine habit."

He said Dr. James D. Hardy and Dr. Helen Goodell of New York had helped him experiment with alcohol as a pain-killer by drinking a solution of ninety-five per cent grain alcohol and five per cent ginger ale. They reported, he added, that it lowered the "threshold" of any pain by forty-five per cent for two hours.

Two ounces of ninety proof whiskey would have the same effect, Dr. Wolff concluded.

Gets a Nickname

"Wintermeyer has been given the sobriquet of 'Daagwood' by the members of his platoon. He was telling me last night his outfit raised $30 to send one of their gang home by plane last week. The man's brother was seriously burned. The arrival of the news found him stoney broke.

"Frank H. Barrett is another Cumberland neighbor. He's in the headquarters outfit and lives next door to Wintermeyer.

"There are others but I can't think of them at the moment.

In Good Outfit

"The One Hundred and Seventy-fifth infantry is a good outfit. The regiment has a history that can be traced back to the Revolutionary war. The nucleus of the outfit, I believe, is what is known as the old Fifth Regiment, or 'Dandy Fifth' of Baltimore. The Regimental insignia was taken from Lord Calvert's coat of arms.

"Only two regiments are allowed to use the Maryland State colors—the One Hundred and Seventy-fifth and the One Hundred and Tenth Field artillery. So you see it is strictly a Maryland regiment.

"Since many people ask us what we do all day long, I'll try and give you a brief account of what we did Friday.

"They haul us out at 5:30. Sometimes the bugle boy blows as if he had a bad taste in his mouth. Reveille is at 5:55. After that we shave, eat breakfast, make our beds, clean and mop and police outside the barracks until 7:30.

Fifty and Ten

"From 7:30 until 8 each morning we breeze through a routine of calisthenic exercises which really loosen a person up. After that, the whole battalion took a six mile hike Friday with the colonel setting the pace. We march fifty minutes and rest ten. The colonel was in the last war but he can march the heels off any of us. Eventually, we will be expected to do twenty miles a day. Our march last week actually did twenty-six.

"We arrived back at 11 o'clock and had squad column drill until noon. This includes taking cover and how to protect oneself from tank and airplane attacks.

"From 1 o'clock to 5 included close order drill when the dust raised by pounding feet covers the parade ground like a fog, a lecture on first aid, another lecture on protection against gas and more close order drill and inspection of fox holes, rifle pits and machine gun nests until quitting time.

Something Satisfying

"Retreat is at 5 and no matter how much one's feet hurt there is something satisfying in seeing long columns of men frozen at attention with hands raised in salute. There is a somewhat indescribable beauty in the notes of the bugle and the roar of the big gun which was captured from the Germans in the last war. I don't know just what the feeling is I guess it's pride.

"After supper we were surprised to learn that we had to give the barracks another going over, including washing forty windows inside and out. We got through about 9 o'clock.

"Like Snuffy Smith, we yardbirds with the peeled pussies, make plenty of mistakes but in general the attitude is pretty good with everybody trying to pull his weight and co-operate.

Profit Taking Lowers Stocks in Day Marked by Lack of Interest

Many Leaders Off Fractious in "Technical" Decline

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Traders took profits in today's stock market, stalling the all-round rise which appeared to be getting under way in the previous session.

The close found many leaders off fractions, although the declines were reached in slow movements which at no time resembled the spirited trading of yesterday's market.

The Associated Press average of sixty selected stocks slipped 1/4 of a point at 39.9. The turnover was 558,569 shares compared with 907,940 yesterday.

Wall street commentators cited the action as "technical," pointing out the lack of any real pressure on the downturn.

Among the shares which carried minus signs at the close were U. S. Steel, Youngstown, Chrysler, Phelps Dodge, Owens-Illinois, Texas Corp., Great Northern Preferred, Pacific Gas and Electric, American Telephone and Telegraph, and U. S. Rubber. Slipping in the curb, where 79,000 shares were exchanged compared with 129,000 yesterday, were American Gas, Humble Oil, Strouck Co., and United Gas. On the upside were Sherwin Williams, New Jersey Zinc and American Potash.

Sales of $9,780,500, par value, were considerably under the high volume of $14,590,600 yesterday when the general market, especially the rails, was in a rising mood.

YOU'RE ENTITLED TO HAVE YOUR COFFEE CUSTOM GROUND

If you're going to get the full fine flavor out of coffee—and that's what you pay for—then your coffee must be ground to just the fineness required for your type of coffee pot. Or—to use the A&P term—it must be Custom Ground for you. Here's the reason: The different types of coffee pot bring hot water into contact with coffee for different lengths of time, as follows...

In Regular Pots, boiling water is in constant contact with coffee... hence, you should have A&P Coffee ground coarse. Percolators force the water over coffee only intermittently... so have your A&P Coffee ground medium. In Drip Pots, water goes through the grounds only once... so A&P Coffee should be ground fine. In Vacuum Pots, the contact of water and coffee is briefest of all... so have your A&P Coffee ground extra fine.

Be sure to tell the clerk in your A&P Coffee Department the type of coffee pot you use—then the fresh coffee beans will be Custom Ground exactly right, so that you'll get all the magnificent flavor.

There are three A&P Coffee blends to suit every taste: Eight O'Clock, mild and mellow; Red Circle, rich and full-bodied and Bokar, vigorous and winery. Try your favorite blend today.

Dodgers Top Cardinals in Baseball Drama

Brooklyn Downs Redbirds 4 to 3 In Series Opener

St. Louis Runs into Trouble in Eighth When Warneke Weakens

By JUDSON BAILEY
BROOKLYN, May 7 (AP)—A baseball ending to one of the season's tensest baseball dramas brought the Brooklyn Dodgers a 4 to 3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today in the first clash of a two-game series between the titans of the National League.

The Redbirds, who won eleven games in a row before dropping a decision at Boston yesterday, remained in first place by a small percentage although the Dodgers advanced half a game in front in games won and lost.

The Cardinals had charge of the game 3 to 1 going into the last half of the eighth. Then Leon Tom Warneke, who had given only three hits previously, suddenly weakened and Manager Billy Southworth cleared out his bullpen by making four shifts for the next six batters.

The trouble started when Pee Wee Reese and Bill Herman hit successive singles with one out. Lefty Clyde Shoun came in to pitch to the left-handed hitting Reiser and gave a single for a run. Right-hander Ira Hutchinson then was called to face right-handed hitting Joe Medwick and forced him into a double play on the first pitch.

Hutchinson was left in at the start of the ninth and walked the first man. Lefty Max Lanier walked the second man. Dolph Camilli Dixie Walker bunted and the bases were loaded with none out.

Right-hander Bill McGee shifted to the mound and Manager Leo Durocher yelled Mickey Owen for a left-handed pitcher. Jim Waddell, who walked to force in the tying run.

Pitcher Paul Waner fled to Terry Moore in short center and Moore made a great throw to the plate to catch Camilli in a double play. But Reese came through with a sharp single to left for the winning run. The boxscore:

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Ernie Lombardi hit his second home run in two days in the second inning today to decide an air-tight pitching battle between Buck Walters and Hal Schumacher and give the Cincinnati Reds a 1 to 0 triumph over the New York Giants.

Schumacher gave only five hits and walked just two batters while Walters, in achieving his fourth straight victory after one defeat, allowed seven safeties and walked five.

Both pitchers received spectacular support and Shortstop Eddie Joost of the world champions tied the major league record for fielding chances by accepting nineteen. There were seven double plays, four by the Reds in the first four innings. The boxscore:

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Lloyd Cliffe Poisoner Wanner, who with Paul Bibe Poisoner Wanner made up baseball's greatest "brother act" for more than a decade was traded today to the Boston Braves for Pitcher Nick Strincevich.

Strincevich, a right hander standing six feet one inch tall and weighing 180 pounds, ended his membership with the re-named Braves by being shooed off the field for sagging the umpires. He is 25 and won four and lost eight for Boston last year.

Paul Wanner now is a utility outfielder for Brooklyn, having been released by the Pirates after playing with Pittsburgh for fifteen years. Lloyd was a Pirate fixture for fourteen seasons.

Younger Players' League Organized
Four Baseball Clubs Form County Loop at Midland Meeting

MIDLAND, May 7.—The Allegany County Baseball League, for players who have not reached their twentieth birthday before June 15, was organized at a meeting in St. Joseph's hall here tonight.

Robert "Red" Teets of Cumberland was elected president; C. H. Harris, Frostburg, vice-president; John Byrnes, Midland, secretary; and Ray Eichhorn, Lonaconing, treasurer.

Four clubs sent representatives to the contest. They were South End of Cumberland, Frostburg Trojans, Lonaconing and St. Joseph's of Midland. Teets represented South End, Ed Langan the Trojans, Gilbert Moffatt Lonaconing and Byrnes Midland.

It was decided to play games on Saturdays and Sundays until the end of the present school term. Then three contests would be staged each week. League officials hope to interest four other clubs in joining the circuit. It is understood outfits in Mt. Savage and Westernport are interested.

Tentative plans call for the opening of the season on Sunday, May 18. Exhibition games between South End and Midland at Cumberland's South End park and Lonaconing and Frostburg at Coney have been arranged for this coming Sunday.

League plans will be furthered at a meeting to be held next Friday night, May 16, at St. Joseph's hall here. Any other clubs interested in the loop can get additional information by phoning Teets, Cumberland 1536-J, between 12 and 2 p. m.

Lombardi's Homer Wins 1-0 for Reds

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Ernie Lombardi hit his second home run in two days in the second inning today to decide an air-tight pitching battle between Buck Walters and Hal Schumacher and give the Cincinnati Reds a 1 to 0 triumph over the New York Giants.

Schumacher gave only five hits and walked just two batters while Walters, in achieving his fourth straight victory after one defeat, allowed seven safeties and walked five.

Both pitchers received spectacular support and Shortstop Eddie Joost of the world champions tied the major league record for fielding chances by accepting nineteen. There were seven double plays, four by the Reds in the first four innings. The boxscore:

Hank Greenberg Starts His Year Of Army Service

Curious Gather Everywhere To See Baseball Star Inducted

By WATSON SPOELSTRA
FORT CUSTER, Mich., May 7 (AP)—Private Henry Greenberg, one of Uncle Sam's $21-a-month men, started his year of military service tonight wishing he could be known merely as No. 36-114-611 instead of the former slugging outfielder of the Detroit Tigers.

The 30-year-old Greenberg, inducted into the army at Detroit today, underwent a hard day as he moved through the selective service channels as an object of attention in every move he made. The curious gathered everywhere to see the lanky ball player who until yesterday was reputedly the game's highest salaried player.

Solemn and serious, the tanned Greenberg towered over other draftees in the induction group of 300 as he took the oath of allegiance and was pronounced a soldier at 9:50 a. m. (EST) by Capt. C. C. Curtis, Jr. of Grand Rapids, chief of the induction center.

Declines Leadership
Greenberg, the American League's most valuable player of 1940, was granted permission to spend several hours with friends before leaving for camp. Meanwhile, distracted induction officers got things back to normal.

It was an unusually long day for one accustomed to completing his daily chores in a few hours at the ball park. Hank was awake before 6 a. m., admitting to only an hour or two of sleep, and appeared half an hour later with Billy Sullivan, Tiger catcher, at draft headquarters.

Offered the honorary leadership of his induction group of fifty, Greenberg declined politely but firmly.

Feet Not Too Flat
He was out in front most of the way, however, in the march to the induction center, a mile distant, dressed in a light gray suit and carrying a canteen overnight bag. He received shouted farewells from all who recognized him along the way.

Once he wondered aloud "where are all those guys this morning who boo me at the ball park?" At the induction center Hank was No. 46 of his group to go before army medical examiners.

It was announced that Greenberg's feet, pronounced by a Florida examiner as too flat for military duty, were flat all right but to a minor degree. Lieut. Carl J. Sprunk, chief examiner, said "We consider them satisfactory for army service."

Tentative plans call for the opening of the season on Sunday, May 18. Exhibition games between South End and Midland at Cumberland's South End park and Lonaconing and Frostburg at Coney have been arranged for this coming Sunday.

League plans will be furthered at a meeting to be held next Friday night, May 16, at St. Joseph's hall here. Any other clubs interested in the loop can get additional information by phoning Teets, Cumberland 1536-J, between 12 and 2 p. m.

Lacy's Delicately and the West Side Merchants scored victories yesterday to remain deadlocked for first place in the City Softball League with two triumphs each.

The Delicatelys stopped the Golden Bakers 4-3 in the latter's loop debut on the Taylor field with the game being halted after five innings on account of rain. West Side turned back the North End Social and Athletic Club ten 4-2 on the North End field.

The Delicatelys scored once in the second when Penner walked, advanced on a passed ball and counted on Crabtree's infield hit. In the third, Weltman got two bases on an error. Minnick doubled, Irons was safe on an error and Penner singled for the other three runners.

The Bakers, blanked for four innings, exploded in the fifth for their three markers. A Davis walked, Troutman singled, Hile walked and P. Davis and Lisanti each connected for one cushion. Weltman, Delicately hurler, fanned five while Wright of the Bakers whiffed three.

The North Enders scored once in each the first and second as the result of Lou Riehl's triple with Kienhofer aboard and Benny Rahl's double with Mulvey on the paths and were leading 2-0 going into the sixth when the bases jammed.

"Shake" Clark drove out a home run to break up a tight mound duel between Kienhofer of North End and Dawson of the Merchants. Clark was the only player on either team with more than one safety. The scores:

Record-Breaking Bowling Congress Comes to Close

Three All-time Marks Broken During Grind, Started in March

ST. PAUL, May 7 (AP)—A record breaking American Bowling Congress tournament came to an official close late last night after a continuous fifty-five day grind which opened March 13.

Three all-time ABC records were broken, although none of the existing all-time high marks in the various bowling divisions established during the forty-one years of the congress were bettered. A new attendance record above the 150,000 mark and new all-time records of twenty-five singles totals of 700 or better and 1952 totals of 600 or better were established.

History will record two outstanding individual achievements—one of the perfect game of 300 rolled by William Hoar of Chicago in the doubles for the ninth 300-score in ABC annals and the other a 299-game, the second ever bowled in the five-man event and the tenth ever bowled in any event, by William Caskey of Canton, Ohio.

Farness Individual Star
Ray Farness, 50-year-old insurance broker of Madison, Wis., emerged as the individual star of the meet. Farness turned in the highest series in the 1941 classic and fifth highest in ABC history, when he contributed 767 in leading himself and partner, William Lee, to the doubles title with a combined total of 1346. Farness also finished in seventh place in the all-events standings with 1951. Farness and Lee will receive $600 and championship medals for their two-man feat, and Farness will collect another $115 in the all-events.

Fred Ruff, Jr., of Belleville, Ill. is the new singles champion and will receive $300 and a championship medal for his winning total of 745 rolled in his first ABC. Ruff also was one of the few doubles winners, finishing ninth in all-events with 1947 for another $105.

Illinois Team Wins
Another doubles winner, Harold Kelly of South Bend, Ind., cops the all-events title with 2013—an average of 223.6 pins per game for his nine games. Kelly's total stood up from March 29.

Kelly also finished ninth in the singles with 714. He will receive $200 and the championship medal for his all-events share, and $210 more for his singles performance.

Lower drawing cash in the various minor divisions are approximately 1127 in doubles, 578 in singles and 1797 in all-events.

Total money to be distributed in the minor divisions are: Doubles $63,309, in 1953 prizes; singles, $64,922, in 4016 prizes, and all-events, $5,915 in 396 prizes.

The team event ended Monday with Vogel Bros. Forest Park, Ill. in first place with 3,065.

Buccaneers Lose To Braves; Both Pilots Banished

Frisch Ejected in Third, Stengel in Eighth as Bucs Bow 7-6

BOSTON, May 7 (AP)—After both managers had been banished for protesting decisions, the Boston Braves put on a two-run rally in the ninth inning today to overtake the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-6, in a wild and wooly game.

Manager Frankie Frisch, of the Pirates, was ejected in the third inning when he argued whether Bama Rowell had beat Eddie Fletcher's throw to Catcher Al Lopez at the plate. That run moved the Braves into a 2-1 lead.

Casey Stengel was ordered off the diamond in the eighth, after Umpire Bill Stewart called a balk against Jim Tobin which brought in Vince DiMaggio from third with the Pirates' sixth tally.

With one out in the ninth, Tobin started the Braves on their victory surge with a single. Clarence Bray ran for him and after Rowell fled out, Johnny Coney got his fifth consecutive hit and his third two-bagger of the game. Relief pitcher Johnny Lanning then filled the bases by passing Gene Moore, and Maxie West singled in Bray and Coney with the tying and winning runs. The box score:

Light Rain Gives Forest Wardens Brief Respite

Salt Block Fire under Control after Devastating 3,000 Acres

Western Maryland forest wardens breathed a collective sigh of relief yesterday afternoon as light rains ended a protracted dry spell during which destructive fires have roared through thousands of acres of timberland and kept fire-fighters on the jump day and night.

Announcing that all blazes are under control, District Forester H. C. Buckingham, of Cumberland, and District Forest Warden George M. Browning, of Garrett county, hailed the showers but pointed out that unless more rain falls, the fire situation will become critical again within twenty-four hours or less, depending on the wind. A "soaking rain" is what is needed, they said.

Garrett county experienced a light shower between 5 and 6 p. m. while rain fell in the Cumberland area from about 6 p. m. to 8:15 p. m.

Fire Rages Three Days

One of the most destructive blazes in twenty years or more was brought under control about 3:30 p. m. yesterday after raging since 5 a. m. Monday. Although the area covered is not definitely known, it was believed to have swept 3,000 acres or more.

Sweeping into the state from West Virginia, the blaze, with a front a mile wide, threatened for a time the Swallow Falls recreational area and the Youghiogheny Electric Power plant and devastated the fine Salt Block hunting and fishing area. The ashes, washing into streams, will be very harmful to fish. It was pointed out, and much game was destroyed or driven out of the state by the fire.

Buckingham was loud in his praise of local wardens, CCC youths and volunteers who helped fight the blaze in the face of "terrible odds." Declaring that the flames, fanned by a high wind, sometimes leaped as much as a quarter of a mile ahead of the main fire. He said that groups were frequently trapped but somehow managed to get out without serious injury.

Tools Needed

This fire and other bad blazes which have roared through Garrett county in recent weeks underline again, the district forester said, the need for trained personnel, portable radios and tools, including portable pumps with flexible hose.

"The forestry department's budget has been greatly slashed."

Another large fire brought under control late yesterday was in the "Roman Nose" area, north of Oakland. Breaking out at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday, it taxed the efforts of 125 wardens and CCC youths and swept some 500 acres before it was quelled.

Several small blazes, some of them incendiary, were reported on Winding Ridge, near Friendsville, which was the scene of huge conflagration Sunday, near Kittanner and on Backbone mountain.

TWO LOCAL YOUTHS ARE INDICTED BY FEDERAL JURY

Two Cumberland youths, Marshall E. Clem, of 22 Mullen street, and Lester L. Moyer, of 1313 Virginia avenue, were indicted Monday in Baltimore by a federal grand jury for violation of the Dyer Act.

Moyer has been held in the county jail in default of $1,000 bond since his arrest April 16. Clem is free on $1,000 bond furnished at a preliminary hearing here several weeks ago before United States Commissioner James Alfred Alvrett.

The two were arrested by city police for allegedly taking the car belonging to Charles Reed, of Central Y.M.C.A. and transporting it across the West Virginia line thereby making it a federal offense.

They will be tried at the May term of federal court, probably in Cumberland.

Local Draftees Will Be Given Time To Settle Affairs before Induction

Extension Can Be Granted When Board Officials Think It Necessary

Local draft boards have received a notice from State Selective Service headquarters in regard to a new plan for draftees who are called for induction and who might need additional time to settle their affairs.

The plan is along the lines recently proposed by Alvin E. Yaste, chief clerk of Local Board No. 3. The notice is as follows:

Seek To Prevent Hardships

Seeking to prevent undue hardship on registrants selected for military training, Selective Service regulations have been amended to allow selectees at least ten days to adjust their personal affairs after an order to report for induction has been received. Lt. Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state director of Selective Service, announced yesterday. And this ten-day adjustment period, he stated, can be extended by local boards up to sixty days or more if need is proven.

Previously, Colonel Stanwood

Harold W. Smith To Address Kiwanis Club Of Prince Georges

Harold W. Smith, a lieutenant-governor of the Capital district of Kiwanis International, will leave today for Prince George's county, where he will address the Prince George's Kiwanis club tonight at Beaver Dam country club. Tomorrow night, he will speak before the Manassas, Va., club. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Smith.

Three Sentenced To Prison Terms; Four Are Paroled

Draftee Slated To Be Inducted Tomorrow Is Released from Jail

Three persons were sentenced to imprisonment and four others paroled yesterday as the criminal docket was completed in circuit court.

Stiffest sentence meted out by Associate Judge William A. Huster was to William Henry Kelley, who had pleaded guilty to statutory rape. He was ordered confined in the House of Correction for two years.

Fifteen - month sentences were given to Robert Howard Snowden and William Henry Rhodes on robbery charges.

Draftee Paroled

Among the four granted paroles was Kenneth Edward Cline, 27, of Corriantville, who had been found guilty by a jury earlier in the week of a drunken driving charge which he had appealed. Judge Huster had ordered him jailed in default of $100 fine, but suspended the sentence yesterday in view of the fact he is to leave tomorrow with draftees from Board No. 3 for the Baltimore induction station.

The other three parolees are Thomas H. Hurt, John Louis Loe and Albert Marcellus Berry. All were charged with larceny and receiving stolen goods in the theft of copper wire from the Western Maryland railway.

In announcing his sentence, Judge Huster indicated he was going to be lenient and give the defendants "another chance." Then he intoned, "Thomas Hurt, three years in the Maryland House of Correction."

Hurt, an elderly negro, looked stunned. Worried, he jumped to his feet. "Did you say suspended, judge?" he asked.

Suspense Broken

Judge Huster told him that he hadn't, and the negro sat down, beads of perspiration on his face. Then the jurist broke the suspense by announcing that he would suspend the sentence, however.

Again the negro was on his feet, his face wreathed in smiles this time, and he profusely thanked the judge. His sentence was suspended for three years on condition he be of general good behavior, refrain from alcohol and report to the court regularly. On another charge of engaging in the junk business without a license, he was granted a suspended one-year sentence on condition he stay out of the junk business.

Loe, also colored, received a suspended three-year sentence the same as Hurt's while Berry, a 15-year-old white youth was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction, with the sentence suspended for five years under strict conditions.

Driving Conviction Upheld

In the only criminal appeals case heard yesterday, a jury upheld a magistrate's conviction of Carlyle M. Stewart, Jr., on charges of drunken driving. A $100 fine imposed in the lower court was ordered paid by Judge Huster in addition to the costs.

Stewart was arrested by State Trooper B. C. Mason after his car collided on Route 40 with an automobile driven by Captain J. A. Dasche, of the Green Ridge CCC camp.

After this trial, which completed the criminal appeals docket, members of the petit jury panel were excused until 9:15 a. m. Monday, when the civil trials docket will be called.

Local Board Given Discretion

"The time specified for reporting shall be at least ten days after the date the order is mailed; provided, in any case where unusual individual hardship will otherwise result, the local board may, whether or not the order to report for induction has been mailed, postpone the time when such registrant shall so report for a period of not to exceed sixty days from the date of such postponement, subject, however, to further postponement upon good cause therefor being shown."

The new amendment, Col. Stanwood said, gives local boards full authority to afford individual registrants an opportunity to make adjustments in their business affairs, take examinations required of certain professions by state laws, and otherwise make satisfactory arrangements in their private lives before entering the military establishment.

Lions Club Buys 1,500 Cigarettes For RAF Pilots

Eight Pairs of Glasses Are Given to Needy Local Children

The Lions Club meeting yesterday at the Central Y.M.C.A. had a definite "British touch" with Mrs. Tasker Lowndes passing around a Bundles for Britain container in which the Lions placed coins for British hospital day. The money realized will aid in supporting public institutions in England.

Enough money was also realized by another donation by the Lions to pay for 1,500 cigarettes which will be sent to RAF pilots in Great Britain. The money is sent to the Bankers Trust Company in New York which is handling the subscription campaign for purchasing "fags" for the pilots.

Cards will be inserted in each package of cigarettes and acknowledgement will be mailed back to the sender by the pilot receiving the package. John K. Snyder, club president, said.

In line with its eye conservation project, Joseph K. Trenton, chairman of the welfare committee, announced that eight pairs of glasses were furnished to needy Cumberland school children in the April-May period.

A fifteen minute quiz program on "national defense" was won by William Blake who answered all but one question. Material for the quiz was furnished by a national magazine.

A defense stamp book containing four twenty-five cent stamps was awarded to Perry Rosenmerkel. When a member gets seventy-one stamps he has enough for a $25 defense bond. The Lions Club quartet under the direction of Joseph Trenton sang several selections.

Red Cross Supplies Are Reaching Their Destination, Davis Asserts

Only Eleven Out of 369 Ships Have Been Sunk, Report Declares

Local groups which have been sewing to aid war victims in Great Britain and Greece can rest assured that their labor has not been in vain and that material has been sunk while being shipped to those countries, Mrs. Louise Coulahan, executive secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, said yesterday.

A report from national Red Cross headquarters says that only eleven of 369 ships carrying supplies across the seas have been sunk. No ship loaded exclusively with Red Cross material to Europe and flying the Red Cross has been lost, Norman H. Davis, Red Cross chairman, said.

Clothing Is Ready
Three huge packing boxes loaded with several hundred articles of clothing are now ready at the local sewing room in the post office basement for shipment.

These articles have been made by many groups sewing for the Red Cross. Mrs. Hammond Amick, Jr., chairman of production for Allegheny county, invites the public to inspect the sewing room and volunteer for the work.

Among the articles to be sent by the local group are forty-four layettes, ten bedsheets, ten women's

Bills Introduced By Charles M. See Signed by O'Connor

Mayor To Wield Spade To Signalize Start of Excavation Work

Two bills introduced in the Maryland House of Delegates by Charles M. See, chairman of the Allegheny county delegation, were among the ninety-two measures enacted into law when the governor affixed his signature to them Tuesday in Annapolis.

House bill No. 151 provides that in Allegheny county during the hours of balloting in any election, the illumination on the shelf in each booth shall not be less than five-foot candles of light, and shall be by electricity where available. The board of supervisors of elections in this county is required to carry out and enforce this law.

Another bill sponsored jointly by See and Thomas Conlon, speaker of the house, and signed by Governor O'Connor, relates to the establishment of stands for the blind in state, county and municipal buildings, parks and playgrounds. This is known as House bill No. 110 and is state-wide.

See was particularly interested in the latter measure because he is the only blind person ever to serve in the General Assembly and the only blind person holding public office in the State of Maryland.

Tomorrow, Mrs. Byron is scheduled to visit Friendsville and Grantsville in Garrett county, returning in the evening to Frostburg, home of A. Charles Stewart, her Republican opponent, for a meeting and reception at 8 p. m.

State police are to continue their investigation today into the injury of Joseph Wiland, 50, of Lonaconing, who was found unconscious on State Route 36 on the outskirts of Lonaconing Friday night.

It is hoped that the probe to find the driver of the car which is believed to have struck Wiland will be completed today, according to State Police Corporal A. M. Spioch.

Wiland, meanwhile, was reported recovering from head injuries at Miners' hospital, Frostburg. He was walking along the highway between Gilmore and Lonaconing when he was struck.

State Police Probe Injury of Pedestrian

Students of Allegheny and Port Hill schools will receive what promises to be a rare treat today when Salem Rizk, who came to America as a youngster from the privations and tragedy of post-war Syria, addresses them at special assembly proceedings on the topic "The Americanization of an American."

Rizk, sponsored by the Readers Digest Magazine as its contribution to good citizenship, has been welcomed in the schools of Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, will lecture at Allegheny high school at 10:45 a. m., and in Port Hill high school at 1 p. m. His messages will require a full forty-five minutes.

Coming to America as a youngster, with an appreciation born of oppression, Rizk learned to revere the American ideals that so many of our boys and girls inherit with indifference. Escaping from squalor and hunger, he learned the English language, educated himself, and has achieved success under circumstances that many American-born children would regard as hopeless.

Among the recent lectures made by Rizk, much praiseworthy comment has marked his visits in William Shoemaker high school, Philadelphia; Haddonfield (N. J.) Memorial high school, The William Horlick high school, Racine, Wis.; Jackson Technical School, Jackson, Miss.; Seales high school, Great Barrington, Mass.; Mamaronck (N. Y.) high school and East Rochester (N. Y.) high school.

Rizk also has addressed countless parent-teacher associations, women's clubs, religious groups, chambers of commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and industrial organizations.

Mrs. Byron Speaks At Large Rally In Mt. Savage

Would Think a Long Time Before Voting To Send Troops Abroad

MT. SAVAGE, May 7 (AP) — Expressing herself as heartily in favor of the national defense program and all-out aid to Britain, Mrs. Katharine E. Byron, Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives seat left vacant by the death of her husband, told a Democratic rally here tonight that she would, however, "think a long, long time before voting for a measure which would send our boys to fight in another country."

Interested in Veterans' Problems

Covering somewhat the same ground as she did in a talk at Westernport last night, she said she was anxious to carry to completion plans made by her late husband, William D. Byron, mentioning specifically the Savage River Dam and the Cumberland airport and pledging her co-operation towards assuring their completion. Mrs. Byron added that she was interested, too, in the veterans' problems. Apparently making a big hit with the audience, she received warm assurances of support from Democratic leaders of Mt. Savage, who told her they had favored her nomination even before she announced her candidacy.

Patrick A. Fannon, chairman of the Democratic committee of Mt. Savage, was in charge of the meeting, at which he introduced Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., of Cumberland, as chairman of the meeting.

Bruce Also Speaks

Bruce, in a brief talk, reviewed the leadership of women throughout history and urged the election of Mrs. Byron to carry out the program proposed by her husband. He referred to the old adage about changing horses in mid-stream and said he saw no reason to replace a Democratic congressman with a Republican.

Similar remarks were made by W. Earle Cobey, of Cumberland, who had been a leading contender for the nomination, and other talks were made by M. F. Prendergast, Mrs. Mina Edmunds, president of the Sixth District Democratic Women's club; and Mrs. Nora Peimong, president of the Allegheny county branch of the Sixth district group, all of Cumberland; and Charles Sloan, Francis P. Herbert, Frank McDermitt and Miss Martha Reagan, all of Mt. Savage.

Tomorrow, Mrs. Byron is scheduled to visit Friendsville and Grantsville in Garrett county, returning in the evening to Frostburg, home of A. Charles Stewart, her Republican opponent, for a meeting and reception at 8 p. m.

A total of 1,249 cases received assistance of all types in Allegheny county, according to the monthly statistical report of March, published by the Maryland State Department of Public Welfare.

The report further indicates that the average assistance grant for each case was $26.11 and the obligations incurred for assistance amounted to $32,610.66.

Miss Elsie Heipp, executive secretary of the Allegheny County Welfare Board, said that the average grant a case was twenty-two cents less in February, or $25.99, when 1,253 cases received assistance and $32,563.41 was expended.

Twenty applications were received at the local office for old age assistance in March and there were forty-four applicants pending at the end of the month. A total of 784 individuals received assistance on an average grant of $18.24 each.

Jobless Benefits Denied Miners By State Board

Previous Decision Is Reversed; Appeals Will Be Heard Here

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP) — The April Coal mine shut-down in Maryland constituted a labor dispute and miners who were idle during the shut-down are therefore not entitled to unemployment compensation, the State Board of Review ruled today.

In a two-to-one decision, the Compensation board denied the claims of a number of union members employed by operators who are members of the George's Creek and Upper Potomac Coal Association.

The ruling in effect reversed a previous decision of the board, although the majority opinion held that the current case and the previous one were not parallel.

Joseph P. McCurdy dissented from the majority ruling, contending that the stoppage of work was due to the lack of a contract fixing wages and conditions of employment.

The majority opinion, signed by William Milnes Maloy and Russell S. Davis, held "that the claimant's unemployment is due to a stoppage of work which exists because of a labor dispute at the place or premises of last employment."

The claimant in the case before the board was Copley Snyder, and the ruling applied to all miners whose status was similar to his. The ruling provided that hearings be held at Cumberland for "any claimant who alleges that he is not similarly conditioned and situated as Copley Snyder or that he is not disqualified under the statute and by this decision of the board from unemployment benefits."

Commenting on the previous ruling and the contention that it should guide the board in the case decided today, the board said the facts make the case dissimilar to the previous one, and continued:

"If this be not correct, the board hereby expressly overrules its previous decision and holds that when a stoppage of work exists and that stoppage is due to a labor dispute, as here found, that the Maryland statute prohibits the board from granting and disqualifies the employee from being entitled to benefits."

Most Mines This Area Still Closed Down

Meanwhile, most of the mines in this area continued closed because of the unwillingness of the operators to accept the $7 per day wage scale as agreed upon for the district at the national conference.

Robert L. Stallings, president of the George's Creek and Upper Potomac Coal Association, an operators' group, said this week that Charles O'Neill, negotiator for the operators, signed a temporary agreement with the union providing for a $7 a day basic wage scale for this district but that members of the association did not authorize that wage.

Stallings pointed out this district has been included in the northern group of mines, but has had the southern wage scale in previous contracts. The reason for the southern wage, the lower scale, has been that this district is the highest cost producing area in the east, Stallings said.

The operator explained that many of the mines in the area are old and that the best coal and the easiest mined coal has been removed.

The association contends this district has been treated unfairly and that this area is the only one in the United States where wages have been increased $140 per day. The old rate here was $5.60.

Stallings said local operators are willing to pay the $1 increase just as other operators, but see no reason why this district should serve as a "guinea pig" for the rest of the east.

The local office of the United Mine Workers reported the district was signed on a $7 a day basis and (Continued on Page 16, Col. 7)

Obligations incurred amounted to $14,297.93.

Eleven families applied for aid to dependent children during the month and the number of children granted aid was 993 of 371 families. The average grant a family was $32.54 and a child $12.16. Obligations for the month totaled $12,070.75.

Public assistance to the needy blind was given to thirty persons who received an average grant of $19.66 an individual. Total obligations incurred was $589.80.

Under general public assistance twenty-six applications were received in March. Three hundred and five cases were assisted at an average grant of $22.54 a case at a total cost of $5,652.18.

Ranks First in Food
Allegheny county ranked first in the state in the amount of surplus food distributed during the month and ranked third in the amount of clothing distributed in what department Frederick county was first and Wicomico county runner-up.
